FIVE OHIO HUNTERS DEAD

CASUALTIES FIRST DAY INCLUDE THREE
FROM HEART DISEASE

Gun Shot Wounds Are Fatal To Two; Many Injured

By THE UNITED PRESS
The opening of the rabbit
hunting season yesterday brought tragedy to several homes.

A survey made by the United Press today revealed that five hunters died, two from gunshot wounds and three from heart attacks induced by over-exertion.

A score of hunters were injured, some by bullets and others by falls.

The victims follow:
Edgar Sprinkle, 17, of North Lima, shot accidentally by his father.

Fred D. Meister, 45, Marietta, killed when he stepped into a charge of buckshot fired by his companion at a rabbit.

Dr. George W. Woods, 64, Columbus; Ezra Miday, 45, Gallipolis, and John F. Graf, 35, Hamilton County, from heart trouble.

Thousands of hunters took to the fields on the first day.

Among the injured is Russell
Merker, former Wilmington High School athlete, who was shot in the hand.

STUDENT WILL FACE FEDERAL CHARGE AS MAIL FRAUD SEQUEL

Posed As Wilberforce Officer Is Claim Of Authorities

James Hill, 20, student at Wilberforce University, being held in the County Jail, faces a probable charge of using the mails to defraud, following his arrest Thursday by Deputy Sheriff George Sugden and O. H. Cornwell, county road patrolman, on complaint of R. B. Hickman, postmaster at Wilberforce.

Hill, who is a second year student in the commercial department at the university, registered from Cleveland, O., although he is now said to claim Louisville, Ky., as his home.

Posing as assistant treasurer of the university, the student, under the name of "John Hill," is said to have written letters to patrons of the institution and parents of students for money. Donations were requested from Wilberforce patrons and in letters to parents Hill advised them that the students owed bills which it became his duty to collect, authorities say.

Postmaster Hickman trapped the student by means of a decoy letter. When Hill called for the letter at the postoffice, the postmaster notified the sheriff's office and the student was placed under arrest.

A postal inspector named West from Dayton came to Xenia Friday and interviewed Hill in the County Jail. Hill is said to have admitted the charge. The postal inspector returned to Dayton to confer with the district attorney and Hill is expected to be taken to Dayton for federal prosecution.

six cylinder models to be delivered after January 1 at prices ranging from $525 to $725 F. O. B. Flint.
The announcement pointed out that prices for the six cylinder cars were the same as for the old four

BROADWAY STARS PAY TRIBUTE TO SHIP HERO

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Broadway will pay material tribute to the heroism of Michael J. O'Loughlin, chief wireless operator of the Vestris who stuck at his key and went down with the ship.

Stars of the stage, screen, and microphone and a number of the survivors of the Vestris will be in a benefit program in his honor at the Colony Theater, Saturday night, according to J. F. Maher, president of the Veteran Wireless Operators' Association. Proceeds from the performance will be sent to O'Loughlin's aged father and mother in Ireland.

The Colony Theater, at Broadway and 53rd St., where

"Goodbye Kiss" is playing, has been turned over to the benefit by Carl Laemmle, president of Universal Pictures Corporation and owner of the theater. Maher said that WOR, Newark radio station, planned to broadcast the evening's entertainment from the stage of the theater as well as present several radio features in connection with the benefit.

WEIRD JAIL MURDER PROBE CONTINUES AS VICTIM IS BURIED

Prentiss Will Reveal Bequest Of $500 To Slayer

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 16.—Don Prentiss, former Detroit motor executive who was murdered by a cellmate in the County Jail, was to be buried today while authorities continued investigation of the weird killing.

A strange will, found three days after Prentiss' death, in which Prentiss gave $500 to James T. Nevins, lake sailor, who murdered him, occupied the puzzled attention of investigators.

A dozen theories of the motive for the killing were advanced. Chief among them was that Prentiss, preferring death to a sentence in Atlanta prison asked Nevins to kill him. The $500 gift was Nevins' price for committing the crime, according to the theory.

Authorities also believed that Nevins killed Prentiss after learning that he was named in the will. It is thought that the will was drawn up Sunday night several hours before Prentiss was killed. Henry C. Lavine, attorney for the slain man, found the will while he was inspecting Prentiss' belongings. Although the paper was unsigned, Lavine declared that it was Prentiss' hand writing.

Prentiss divided insurance policies totaling $30,000 among his two children and fifteen-year-old Virginia Palmer whose relations with him resulted in him being sentenced for violation of the Mann act. Miss Palmer was given $10,000.

Nevins is now in Atlanta prison. He will be returned here within a few days to stand trial on a first degree murder charge. Nevins told Cleveland authorities that he killed Prentiss "to get even with the world." He had given every motive for his crime.

GOVERNMENT PLANS TO INTRODUCE NYE AND WALSH IN CASE

Their Testimony Will Close Stewart Perjury Trial

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—The government expects to close its perjury trial against Robert W. Stewart today with testimony of Chairman Nye and Prosecutor Walsh of the senate Teapot Dome committee.

The defense will then take two or three days at least, which with a two-day week end recess, will continue the court hearing until late next week.

Nye and Walsh will corroborate the record of Stewart's testimony last February and April before the committee.

The Indiana Standard Oil millionaire defendant, said on the February appearance that he made no money personally out of Continental Company bonds and knew nothing of the disposition thereof, according to the record; it is on this testimony that the perjury charge is based, for on his April appearance Stewart admitted receiving $750,000—one-fourth of the more than $3,000,000 Liberty bond profits of the Continental Trading Company.

A newspaper correspondent, Paul Y. Anderson of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, termed Stewart a "tricky witness" when defense attorneys wanted him to explain why he had suggested to Chairman Nye the direct questions about receipt and knowledge of the bonds.

G. O. P. AHEAD

CLEVELAND, Nov. 16.—Joseph R. Nutt, treasurer of the Republican national campaign, has announced that the party will show a surplus, after payment of all debts. He said party campaign expenditures would aggregate $2,000,000. He said the surplus would depend upon whether state organizations fulfilled their campaign pledges.

MEET HEROIC DEATHS

Speedway Stars, Valorous On Track, Show Heroism In Ocean Tragedy

Norman Batten at the wheel of his racing car, and, inset, Earl Devore.

By BILL RITT
Staff Writer for Central Press and Gazette

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 16.—The gas-soaked, fire-lashed track of the speedway breeds good motor cars. But it does something infinitely finer than that. It breeds men.

Men like Norman Batten and Earl Devore. Men who stand back with death near while others rush to safety. Men calm and strong in a vortex of horror and fear. They rode the crest of fame together on fine spring afternoons before admiring thousands. And, say newspaper dispatches, they drowned together on a raw November afternoon in a whirlpool of agony which was the grave of the ill-fated steamer Vestris, off the Virginia capes.

Will Be Missed on Tracks
Batten and Devore, speedway stars of the first magnitude, will be missed from the big gas tracks next summer when the swanky little mounts roll up to the starting line, their exhausts barking a challenge to the world of speed.

Denied a race driver's death such as came to Roscoe Searles, Dario Resta, Bob Burman, Frank Lockhart, Joe Boyer, Gaston LeMoult and many other modern sons of Mercury, Batten and Devore, nevertheless, are sure of a niche in the speedway's hall of fame.

Especially Batten. Just a year and a half ago he gave the speedway fans their greatest thrill when he risked his life in a flame-swept car to assure the safety of other

FAMED GEOLOGIST DIES OF PNEUMONIA

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—Funeral services will be held late today for Prof. Thomas C. Chamberlin, 85, world figure in the field of geology, who died yesterday of bronchial pneumonia and heart disease. He was one of the original members of the University of Chicago faculty.

Burial will be held in Beloit, Wis. Professor Chamberlin was the author of the planetesimal hypothesis of the earth's origin, a theory now generally accepted by scientists.

Only three weeks ago his latest book, "The Solar Families—The Sun's Children," was published and commented on favorably by critics. He pictured the sun as the mother of the earth and its father a passing star, which swept by the sun millions of years ago, coming from the southern heavens.

At the time of his death, Professor Chamberlin was professor emeritus of geology and paleontology at the university.

HOOVER PLEASED AS MOVE LAUNCHED FOR RELIEF AGREEMENT

Would Bring Action On Matter At Short Session

PALO ALTO, Calif., Nov. 16.—President-elect Hoover is pleased with reports from Washington that congress, at its coming short session may enact a farm relief program adequate for immediate relief, thus obviating the necessity of an extra session after March 4.

Hoover promised an extra session in the closing days of his presidential campaign, unless adequate relief was afforded during the short winter session, which at that time seemed improbable. Now, however, it appears Secretary of Agriculture Jardine and Senator Charles McNary of Oregon, co-author of the McNary-Haugen bill, are likely to reach an agreement on legislation along lines laid down by the president-elect and that McNary and other farm leaders will press relief measures.

Establishment of stabilization corporations constitutes the heart of Hoover's farm relief program which provides likewise for tariff increases on agricultural products and further aid to co-operative marketing, as well as such long time assistance as development of inland waterways.

If congress at the short session meets his views in so far as to pass a measure setting up stabilization corporations, thus establishing machinery to aid the farmer in marketing next year's crop, he will not call an extra session.

This will leave him free to plan during the several months before the new congress regularly assembles in December, 1929, other measures for aid of agriculture on a long time basis, including tariff increases, further aids to co-operative marketing and inland waterways.

The president-elect completed packing today for his South American tour. Trunks and boxes carrying his and Mrs. Hoover's effects were loaded aboard trucks and carted to the station, to be shipped to San Pedro and there put aboard the battleship Maryland which sails Monday.

PUBLISHER WILL BE BURIED SATURDAY

Neutral Is Favored; Mention Fess As Majority Boss

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Senator Wesley Jones, who belongs to neither the so-called Old Guard nor to the Progressives, probably will assume the Republican leadership of the senate when the mantle is shed by Vice President-elect Charles E. Curtis.

His selection already is being negotiated as a compromise in the lively little political campaign being waged around this highly important party post, since Curtis indicated he would resign before or at the coming session of congress.

The contest for the post is being waged by friends of Senator Geo. Moses of New Hampshire and Senator James E. Watson of Indiana. Next in the list of five contestants are Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio and David A. Reed of Pennsylvania.

Jones is being boosted as a compromise because he is the oldest of the group in point of service. He has been a senator from Washington since 1909, and the senate follows the rule of seniority except when it conflicts with the desires of the leaders. He was one of the original supporters of Herbert Hoover and has been closely identified with Hoover's administration of the department of commerce, as he is chairman of the senate commerce committee.

The Washington senator was whip under Curtis and handled the senate during Curtis' lengthy illness last session.

DRY AGENTS RAID 21 PLACES IN NEW YORK; TAKE 30 PRISONERS

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Fifty federal agents early today made a first whirlwind campaign over that section of the city which becomes gayer as the early morning hours arrive. Some of the federal forces were augmented by city police.

The Gay Paree and Jimmy Kelly's were among the better known night clubs raided. In some quarters it was reported the raids were ordered directly by Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general, but these reports could not be confirmed at the federal building.

HELEN WASN'T MAD--JUST PEEVED AT PAPERS

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Nov. 16.—Helen Sargent, 23, whose interest in prison reforms, police say, led her to heap condemnation on the Youngstown and Mahoning County jails, will now have a chance to study her subjects first hand.

She was sentenced yesterday by Common Pleas Judge George H. Gessner to spend one to three years in the Ohio Reformatory for Women at Marysville for passing worthless checks.

"Have you anything to say before I pronounce sentence upon you?" asked the judge.

"Yes I have," she said with emphasis, and turning from the prisoners bar toward the press table, she scathingly denounced Youngstown newspapers.

She faced around toward the judge.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Senator Wesley Jones, who belongs to neither the so-called Old Guard nor to the Progressives, probably will assume the Republican leadership of the senate when the mantle is shed by Vice President-elect Charles E. Curtis.

He was one of the original supporters of Herbert Hoover and has been closely identified with Hoover's administration of the department of commerce, as he is chairman of the senate commerce committee.

The Washington senator was whip under Curtis and handled the senate during Curtis' lengthy illness last session.

These six men might have the past to brood over if it were not for the bewilderment and uncertainty offered by what they know as the future.

Justice has undoubtedly given these men many lucky breaks. There were technicalities to consider—appeals and briefs to wade through—then the political campaign happened along and took up a lot of time. Now the supreme court is back on the bench and the condemned men have renewed their nervous tensions.

The law reads that the death penalty comes 100 days after sentence—barring law quibbling.

Stanley Hoppe, of Toledo, who confessed he murdered a little 7-year-old girl in addition to an outrageous crime against her, is now complaining through his attorneys that he did not get justice although he had waived a jury trial when he was captured. Recently he pleaded insanity but could not pass the examiners. He was to have died October 26. He has had three stays.

Everett Koon, of Marion, a young miner who killed an aged farmer and beat the farmer's wife during a robbery, was to have been electrocuted November 5.

John Bradshaw, colored, of Columbus, was to die September 26 for the murder of Katie Young.

The record for the six, however, is held by Joe Weaver, colored, of Cleveland, who was sentenced to die August 12, 1927 for killing a night watchman during a robbery. He has had six stays. Now the supreme court is studying an alleged confession by his partner in the crime. The partner is serving life.

There are still several plays open in the little game of beating old time.

WITNESSES TELL OF CONDITIONS WHICH CONDEMN OFFICERS

Survivors Indicate Delay
In Calling Help Was
Fatal

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—The seaman's view of how and why the S. S. Vestris went down some 240 miles off Virginia, carrying with it a probable loss of life of 114; will be told today in a United States commissioner's office some blocks removed from the maritime part of New York.

The story will be recounted as United States District Attorney Charles H. Tuttle attempts to learn whether any American maritime laws were broken by the Vestris, whether American lives were endangered unnecessarily and whether any officer of the Vestris or of the Lamport and Holt lines should be prosecuted.

Already Commissioner Francis A. O'Neil has heard the condemnatory stories of passengers rescued from that ill-fated liner.

He listened to six stories yesterday. There was no sparing of the cankers of the Vestris and there were few good words about that voyage.

Today the story shifts to what the officers have to say with Avard Adams, chief engineer, the first witness scheduled to testify. Adams will tell is problematical. He was mum when brought in by the S. S. Berlin. Other members of the crew also will testify today.

The stories told by the four passengers yesterday generally were alike. The facts in general are told here:

1. One steward was so drunk he could not wait on one passenger's cabin.
2. There was no verbal order issued for the passengers to put on life belts.
3. All life boats were unseaworthy.
4. There had been no life boat drill.
5. The delay in sending out the SOS caused the great loss of life.
6. There was indecision on the part of the officers in command when the crisis came about 2:30 p. m. Monday.

After the hearing yesterday District Attorney Tuttle said the United States had no jurisdiction over actions on the high sea of a British ship but inasmuch as American lives were lost, the United States must determine whether there was any criminal negligence.

CASUALTY LIST FOR VESTRIS DISASTER SEEMS FIXED AT 114

Check Of Passenger List

Toll.

By THE UNITED PRESS
Every indication today pointed to a casualty list of 114 as result of the sinking of the steamer Vestris some 240 miles off the Virginia coast, and ninety-three of these victims still are unaccounted for.

Rescue boats have brought 213 persons into port while twenty-one bodies are known to have been picked up by coast guard vessels. Most of the bodies still are unidentified.

Three coast guard vessels, the Davis, Porter and Manning, remain at the scene making additional searches for possible survivors and for bodies of those who died when the Vestris listed and sank last Monday.

A tabulation of the survivors, known dead and missing: Aboard the Vestris when it sailed:

Crew 199;
Passengers 128;
Rescued: By American Shipper 125;
By Berlin 23;
By Myrland 5;
By Wyoming 8;
Total 213.
Dead: Aboard Tucker 4;
Aboard Acushnet 13;
Total 21.

DRY AGENTS RAID 21 PLACES IN NEW YORK; TAKE 30 PRISONERS

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Fifty federal agents early today made their second concerted drive on New York night clubs and alleged speak-and taking thirty prisoners.

The places visited by the agents ranged from office buildings in the midtown to the gay resorts in Greenwich Village. None of the better known night clubs, such as those at which Texas Guinan and Helen Morgan entertain, were visited today.

The squads were sent out in five groups of ten each and made a arrive. Some of the federal forces

the raids were ordered directly by will assume the Republican leadership of the senate when the mantle is shed by Vice President-elect Charles E. Curtis.

His selection already is being negotiated as a compromise in the lively little political campaign being waged around this highly important party post, since Curtis indicated he would resign before or at the coming session of congress.

The contest for the post is being waged by friends of Senator Geo.
Moses of New Hampshire and Senator James E. Watson of Indiana.
Next in the list of five contestants are Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio and David A. Reed of Pennsylvania.

Jones is being boosted as a compromise because he is the oldest of the group in point of service. He has been a senator from Washington since 1909, and the senate follows the rule of seniority except when it conflicts with the desires of the leaders. He was one of the original supporters of Herbert Hoover and has been closely identified with Hoover's administration of the department of commerce,
as he is chairman of the senate
commerce committee.

The Washington senator was whipped under Curtis' lengthy illness last session.

Each enjoys an indefinite stay of execution at present. Each man is waiting for the State Supreme Court to do something about him.
Other condemned men at this pen have known what day
what hour and maybe the minute of the end. They could ask the "death row" guard "how much longer?" That "now much longer" interrogation made good stories for the papers.

John Sabo, colored, of Cincinnati, who was convicted of killing a policeman, had a cheap alarm clock. They told him he was going to die January 28 of this year. He wanted to watch the days dwindle to hours and the hours to minutes.
But they began giving him stays,
so he boxed the clock up and sent it home to his folks—either a gesture of impatience, or resignation or confidence.

John Sabo, of Akron, who is charged with having been the victim of that soul-corroding even-revenge (he waited for a man and killed another by mistake), has been a tenant of "death row" for almost eighteen months. First he was sentenced to die July 15, 1927.
He got an indefinite stay, then the date was reset for March 16, 1928.
Now he has another indefinite stay.

These six men might have the past to brood over if it were not for the bewilderment and uncertainty offered by what they know
as the future.

Justice has undoubtedly given these men many lucky breaks.
There were technicalities to consider—appeals and briefs to wade through—then the political campaign happened along and took up a lot of time. Now the supreme court is back on the bench and the condemned men have renewed their nervous tensions.

The law reads that the death penalty comes 100 days after sentence—barring law quibbling.

Stanley Hoppe, of Toledo, who confessed he murdered a little 7-year-old girl in addition to an outrageous crime against her, is now complaining through his attorneys that he did not get justice although he had waived a jury trial when he was captured. Recently he pleaded insanity but could not pass the examiners. He was to have died October 26. He has had three stays.

Everett Koon, of Marion, a young miner who killed an aged farmer and beat the farmer's wife during a robbery, was to have been electrocuted November 5.

John Bradshaw, colored, of Columbus, was to die September 26
for the murder of Katie Young.

The record for the six, however,
is held by Joe Weaver, colored, of Cleveland, who was sentenced to die August 12, 1927 for killing a night watchman during a robbery.
He has had six stays. Now the supreme court is studying an alleged confession by his partner in the crime. The partner is serving life.

There are still several plays
open in the little game of beating old time.

BREAKDOWN FATAL

OXFORD, O., Nov. 16.—Miss Agnes Morris, 79, daughter of the late Dr. Robert E. Morris, former president of Oxford College, died here from a nervous breakdown induced by the closing of the college last September because of financial reverses.

WITNESSES TELL OF CONDITIONS WHICH CONDEMN OFFICERS

Survivors Indicate Delay
In Calling Help Was
Fatal

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—
The seaman's view of how and why the S. S. Vestris went down some 240 miles off Virginia, carrying with it a probable loss of life of 114; will be told today in a United States commissioner's office some blocks removed from the maritime part of New York.

The story will be recounted as United States District Attorney Charles H. Tuttle attempts to learn whether any American maritime laws were broken by the Vestris, whether American lives were endangered unnecessarily and whether any officer of the Vestris or of the Lamport and Holt lines should be prosecuted.

Already Commissioner Francis
A. O'Neil has heard the conditional stories of passengers rescued from what ill fated liner.

He listened to six stories yesterday. There was no sparing of the details of the Vestris and the were few good words about that tragedy.

Today the story shifts to what the officers have to say with Avard Adams, chief engineer, the first witness scheduled to testify. What he will tell is problematical. He was when brought in by the S. S. Berlin. Other members of the crew also will testify today.

The stories told by the four passengers yesterday generally were about the same in general as told were:

1. One steward was so drunk he could not wait on one passenger's cabin.
2. There was no verbal order issued for the passengers to put on life belts.
3. All life boats were unseaworthy.
4. There had been no life boat drill.
5. The delay in sending out the SOS caused the great loss of life.
6. There was indecision on the part of the officers in command
when the crisis came about 2:30
p. m. Monday.

After the hearing yesterday District Attorney Tuttle said the United States had no jurisdiction over actions on the high seas of a British ship but inasmuch as American lives were lost, the United States must determine whether there was any criminal negligence.

CASUALTY LIST FOR VESTRIS DISASTER SEEMS FIXED AT 114

Check Of Passenger List
And Rescued Reveals
Toll.

By UNITED PRESS
Every indication today pointed to a casualty list of 114 as result of the sinking of the steamer Ves-tris some 240 miles off the Virginia coast, and ninety-three of these victims still are unaccounted for.

Rescue boats have brought 213 persons into port while twenty-one bodies are known to have been picked up by coast guard vessels.
Most of the bodies still are unidentified.

Three coast guard vessels, the Davis, Porter and Manning, remain at the scene making additional searches for possible survivors and for bodies of those who died when the Vestris listed and sank last Monday.

A tabulation of the survivors,
known dead and missing:

- Board the Vestris when it
sailed:
Crew 199;
Passengers 128.
Rescued:
By American Shipper 125;
By Berlin 27;
By Myrialm 23;
By Wyoming 8.
Total 213.
Dead:
Aboard Tucker 4;
Aboard Acushnet 4;
Aboard Shaw 13.
Total 21.

ing table here from knife wounds
he claimed he received in a battle with Tom Jenkins, 19, also colored.
Jenkins has disappeared.

VALUE OF SOUL IS SUBJECT OF PASTOR AT BAPTIST CHURCH

Continuing his messages at the First Baptist Church, pastor-evangelist S. A. Stulce, Thursday night preached on the topic "The Value of the Soul", Luke 8:37. Dr. Stulce said in part:

"God placed such a high estimate on the value of the soul that for the time being He dimmed the glory of Heaven and sent His Son to die for the redemption of men's souls. Jesus valued the soul so highly that He willingly bore the insults of men, the cruelties of Calvary, and the shame of the cross that He might redeem the soul of men from the power of sin and death.

"Jesus drew a comparison between the value of earthly wealth and honor and the soul when He said, 'What shall it profit a man if he should gain the whole world and lose his own soul?' In the face of death and the judgment, the wealth of the world is valueless. Shrouds have no pockets in them nor will your check book be placed in your pocket. Why lay up gold which is not coin-current in your eternal abode? All earthly honor, wealth, fame and glory are reduced to the shroud and casket, a few tears, a few words of eulogy that are usually forgotten before the hearer returns from the cemetery. The treasures of the world are temporary, its joys unsatisfying, its values uncertain and at the most we can enjoy them for a short season only. The soul is eternal. It may be saved to enjoy Heaven's blessings or lost to the suffering and misery of eternal perdition."

Friday night Dr. Stulce will preach a special sermon to young people and their parents and friends on the topic, "The Problems of Youth."

REVIVAL SERVICES INCREASE INTEREST

"Who is Going to Hell?" will be the subject of the Rev. W. V. Sharp, evangelist at the Church of the Nazarene, Friday evening.

The revival services are progressing with increased interest. Mr. Fagan, blind musician, will continue with the meetings the remainder of this week and also next week.

Services begin at 7:30 p. m.

BEAVERCREEK HIGH NEWS

The junior class has at last chosen a class ring. The main set is a large ruby with large "B" in the center.

Monday evening, October 5, the thrilling drama, "Judgment", was presented in picture at the K. of P. Hall, the film being historical, and based on Victor Hugo's "Mary Tudor."

On Monday, November 12, there was another film, "The Cheer Leader", a college setting.

An educational film was presented free last Thursday by the Jam Handy Co., the second of a series kindly presented to us by this company in the interests of visual education.

Dorothy Lyon has been going around school this week with a crutch, due to a badly sprained ankle she received last Thursday when she fell out of a machine. Lawrence Belt also received a badly sprained ankle on the football field this last week. Who'll be the next?

A very interesting letter from Earl Collins, former superintendent here, was read from the Cedarville Herald, Monday morning, by Mr. Smith. We were all glad to hear from Mr. Collins, and glad to know he is well and enjoying his work in Egypt.

Beginning the basketball season next week, the girls' teams will hold a tournament according to classes. The sophomore and freshmen teams will play off a group of games this week, while the seniors and juniors will play next week. The teams winning each trio will try for the championship of Beaver.

A fine vacation "was enjoyed by all" pupils, while the teachers journeyed to Columbus to teachers' meeting there last Friday. We should like to have them go at least once a month—or more.

A large number of fathers and sons of the high school, as well as many others of the community, attended the "Fathers and Sons Banquet" last Saturday night at the K. of P. Hall here. Large attendance, excellent program, fine dinner, and general good time describes it only briefly and mildly.

The sophomore and freshmen teams will play off a group of games this week, while the seniors and juniors will play next week. The teams winning each trio will try for the championship of Beaver.

A fine vacation "was enjoyed by all" pupils, while the teachers journeyed to Columbus to teachers' meeting there last Friday. We should like to have them go at least once a month—or more.

A large number of fathers and sons of the high school, as well as many others of the community, attended the "Fathers and Sons Banquet" last Saturday night at the K. of P. Hall here. Large attendance, excellent program, fine dinner, and general good time describes it only briefly and mildly.

Schubert Program Will Honor Composer

LOCAL music lovers will spend an hour with Franz Peter Schubert, commemorating the 100th anniversary of his death, at the First Reformed Church, Sunday, November 18.

The late Mrs. Barbara Margaretta Schubert Schweibold, life long member of the First Reformed Church, was a niece of Schubert. The musician was Mrs. Schweibold's father's youngest brother and many of Schubert's belongings are in the possession of the Schweibold family here.

Schubert died at thirty-one years, but wrote 600 songs during his short life. His life formed the basis of the production "Blossom Time" which has been playing to capacity houses four years.

The program will begin at 4 o'clock and will have the following numbers:

Andante Moderato—From Unfinished Symphony, piano, violin, organ.
Twenty-Third Psalm—Odet, Impromptu in A Flat Major—Piano, organ.
To Music—Alto solo.
The Litany—Alto solo.
Erl King—Soprano solo, Mrs. MacKenzie.
Ave Maria—Soprano solo, violin obligato, Mrs. Watkins.

CHRISTIAN WORKER, 79, SAYS KONJOLA GAVE NEW HEALTH

Thirty Years of Stomach Trouble Made Life Miserable; New Medicine Completely Banished That Allment

Konjola does not limit its healing and soothing powers to any particular age or sex. Men and women in all walks of life report glorious relief from their health troubles. Young and old, people in the seventies and eighties and children in the tender age below ten years have been given the

Bloom of renewed life and health. It is a surprising fact, but Konjola is at the peak of its powers in cases that have defied every other medicine and are of years duration. Its thirty-two ingredients, twenty-two of which are the juices from roots and herbs, go directly to the ailing organs, soothing, strengthening and invigorating them to a more healthy, normal action. The manner in which Konjola works is described in detail by Mr. J. B. Everett, 100 Allison Ave., this city, who made the following statement to the Konjola Man at the Gallaher Drug Store, 33 East Main St., this city:

"As a Christian worker I wish to let all sufferers know about Konjola, the most remarkable medicine on the market today," said Mr. Everett. "I have given it a fair trial and have gained amazing relief after thirty years of suffering."

"When I say that for thirty years I suffered from stomach trouble I am not exaggerating the slightest bit. Day in and day out the various miseries of a disordered organ came over me. Meals no longer held any pleasure, they became a torture and merely a means for nourishment—getting very little, at that. I am seventy-nine years old and thought that possibly my age might be the reason why I did not get relief. I was unable to find anything that agreed with me. Quantities of gas formed and remained in my stomach for hours at a time. Severe, piercing pains centered in my back, sometimes becoming so bad that they felt as if someone were sticking knives into me. To say that I was discouraged is putting it mildly. I began losing hope and this helped to make my life hardly worth living."

"Konjola was recommended to me and I had heard a great deal about this medicine and its wonderful deeds of restoring lost health. I felt that I could not afford to let this chance for betterment slip by. I made up my mind to start on the treatment and that decision proved the wisest I could have made. Konjola got relief. I was exactly what I always needed. It went to the very source of my ailments, strengthening and invigorating the diseased organs to a more healthy, normal action. My stomach retained and digested food better than in thirty years. I hardly knew what to make of it. When I tried eating things that I never dared to touch before and they were rejected perfectly. I knew that at last I was on the road to health. Today, after taking three bottles, there isn't a trace of stomach trouble. I eat and enjoy my meals just like other healthy people. The pains and gas bloating are ended. I am a new man, enjoying life and taking a keen interest in the daily activities. That is what Konjola has done for me and I know will do for others."

The Konjola Man is at the Gallaher Drug Store, Xenia, where he is meeting the public daily, introducing and explaining the merits of this medicine. Adv.

Am Meer—Piano, violin, organ.
Serenade—Odet, accompanied by piano, violin, organ.
The Almighty—Odet.
Those taking part in the program will be: first soprano, Mrs. John Watkins; Mrs. Edgar Reeves, Mrs. Meda Gowdy; second soprano, Mrs. William McGervey; Mrs. Lawrence Evans and Mrs. Lloyd Cavender; altos, Mrs. Raymond Wolf and Mrs. Frank Wolf.
The accompanists will be: violin, Mrs. Louis Hammerle, piano, Miss Margaret Steele and Miss Mildred Waddle. Miss Margaret Williams will be organist and director.

DISTRICT OFFICERS ATTEND REBEKAH MEET.
The Phoenix degree was exemplified according to the new ritual and the drill team staged an impressive exhibition drill, at the meeting of Phoenix Rebekah Lodge, Thursday evening, November 15, at the home of Mrs. Margaret Steele, representative and inspector of the Fifty-third district of Ohio, was present and congratulated the lodge on its conduct of meetings and degree work.

She also gave a report of the Ohio Rebekah Assembly meeting. Mrs. Ruth Washburn, Springfield, past district president was also present and gave a short talk, as did several other visitors and candidates.

The lodge presented Mrs. McIntire with a strand of pearls. The social committee announced a thimble party at the home of Mrs. George Fuller, November 22.

Refreshments and a social time followed.

MCLELLAND W. C. T. U. MEETS ON WEDNESDAY
Mrs. Cynthia Ginn and Mrs. Fred McClain delightedly entertained thirty members of the McClelland W. C. T. U. and several visitors at their home on the Upper Bellbrook Pike, Wednesday afternoon.

The program for the afternoon on "Soldiers and Sailors" followed the business meeting. Mrs. Carrie McCall read a paper "Ten Years of Peace." Mrs. Mary McClelland also read "Is the Pen Mightier Than the Sword?" Mrs. Richard McClelland favored the group with several vocal selections, accompanied by Mrs. Heber Douthett.

After the program, Mrs. Hazel Manor gave a splendid report of the state convention held in Columbus.

The hostesses and their assistants, Mrs. Carrie McCall and Miss Myrtle Barnett served dainty refreshments.

FORMER ANTIOCH STUDENT MARRIED

The marriage of Miss Virginia Cromwell Schachne, daughter of Mrs. Abram Schachne, Dayton, and former student at Antioch Academy and College, Yellow Springs, to Mr. John Warren Humphrey, Birmingham, Mich., was solemnized with impressive dignity at the home of the bride's mother, on Superior Ave., Thursday evening.

Mrs. Humphrey is a sister of Mrs. Lewis Tingley, Louisville, Ky., formerly of Xenia.

Upon their return from their honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Humphrey will reside in Anderson, Ind., where Mr. Humphrey is associated with the Delco-Remy Co.

XENIAN MARRIED IN CLARKSVILLE

Mr. Ira Williams, of Xenia and Miss Mary Pennington of Clarksville, O., were united in marriage Wednesday morning at the home of the bride.

The Rev. Mr. Tucker of the First M. E. Church, Clarksville, performed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Williams have gone to house-keeping on Columbus St., this city.

Fire Chief William Hanifan fractured his right thumb, when an auto he was cranking to answer a fire alarm, "backfired" and struck his hand, several days ago.

Mr. A. E. Kelbie, advertising compositor at THE GAZETTE is confined to his home on S. West St., by an attack of grip.

BUSINESS WOMEN HEAR

MRS. GEYER IN TALK
An opportunity to obtain a clear insight into the home and market use of China and to admire many beautiful things brought from that country was given members of the Xenia Business and Professional Women's Club, when Mrs. Carrie D. Geyer, told the club of her three years' stay in China, at the monthly meeting Thursday evening.

After vividly describing her visit in the Orient, Mrs. Geyer gave the members an opportunity for a "questionnaire" on that country and she answered each question with clarity and in an entertaining way. During her talk, various souvenirs she brought from the Orient were displayed and admired.

A charming song program was presented by Miss Zella Soward during dinner, preceding Mrs. Geyer's talk. Miss Soward graciously responded with several encores and her numbers were appreciated by the club.

The dinner tables presented a pretty sight with Colonial corasques, the gift of Mrs. Floyd Anderson, a member of the club, which were placed at each cover.

The usual business meeting was held after dinner and Mrs. Geyer's talk followed.

Mrs. Frank Scott and Mrs. Daisy Rectores have invited a number of friends to enjoy a thimble party at Mrs. Scott's home on W. Second St., Tuesday afternoon.

Order of the Eastern Star, No. 262, will entertain with an evening party in the reception parlors of the Masonic Temple Monday evening, November 19, at 7:30 o'clock. All members are cordially invited.

The W. H. O. Sunday School Class of the U. B. Church was entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Pidgeon, S. Monroe St., Thursday evening. A business meeting and election of officers were held, followed by refreshments and a social time.

A special meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary will be held in Post Hall, Monday evening, November 19 at 7:30 o'clock. The regular business will be transacted at this meeting.

Mrs. Fred Ealdner and Mrs. B. F. Thomas were representatives from the local Pythian Sisters lodge to the twenty-seventh annual session of Pythian Sisters from the second district, held in Dayton, Thursday.

The Home Guards and Kings Heralds of the First M. E. Church will meet at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon in the basement of the church. All children between the ages of 6 and 14 are invited to be present.

McGervey Class, Trinity M. E. Church, will meet at the home of Mrs. H. W. Collett, 532 S. Detroit St., Monday evening.

Miss Mary Hornick, N. King St., is spending a week in Dayton, the guest of Mrs. Edward Keller.

FIRST U. P. WOMEN ENTERTAINED AT TEA

Tea was enjoyed by fifty women of the First United Presbyterian Church, entertained by the second division of the Ladies Aid Society, Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Carrie D. Geyer, who has been delivering a series of talks on her three-year stay in China, gave an interesting account of her trip and displayed the articles she brought from the Orient.

Mrs. Richard McClelland sang two solos, accompanied by Miss Margaret Steele.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smith, Cincinnati, who have been visiting Mrs. Smith's parents, Mr. and Mrs. De Graff, E. Market St., have returned home.

Dr. and Mrs. N. T. Pavey have invited a group of Xenia friends as their dinner guests at their home in Springfield Monday night.

Mr. Gerald Kelbie, W. Second St., who has been ill sometime, has been suffering from pleurisy several days but is slightly improved.

Mrs. George McKee, Chestnut St., has gone to Pleasant Prairie, Wis., to remain until after Christmas with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence McKee.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Homan, Cleveland, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. George Lewis, Indian Ripple Road.

Mrs. Howard Norris, Hill St., is spending three weeks in Florida, visiting relatives and friends.

Mrs. Walter Flomerfelt, St. Detroit St., is spending two weeks with her son and daughter-in-law, Mrs. and Mrs. Walter Flomerfelt, Jr., Detroit, Mich.

CANDIDATES FAIL TO FILE EXPENSES

A majority of the candidates at Greene County's election November 6 have neglected to file their campaign expense accounts with the board of elections, although the time for filing expires at midnight Friday, ten days after the election, according to R. E. Dunkel, clerk of the board.

Only ten candidates had filed by Friday morning, no new accounts having been submitted Thursday. Election board officials warn candidates against delinquency in filing their expense accounts.

WOMAN IS INDIRECT VICTIM OF FIRST HUNTING ACCIDENT

Mrs. George Persinger, 50, wife of a prominent Jamestown, Pike farmer near Rosemoor, was an indirect victim of the hunting season, the first reported in the county, Thursday.

Mrs. Persinger is being treated at the offices of Dr. R. L. Haines, Jamestown, after twenty-two shots from a twelve-gauge shotgun, struck her Thursday afternoon.

She was in the kitchen of her home preparing dinner, when Mr. Persinger returned from a hunting trip. He began to unload his gun outside the door, when it was accidentally discharged.

The charge pierced the closed door and shot struck the linoleum on the kitchen floor and were deflected to where Mrs. Persinger was seated. The shot imbedded themselves in her body from her ankle to her neck. One hundred shot remained in the door.

Mrs. Persinger was rushed to Dr. Haines' offices, where the shot were removed. Some imbedded in the flesh deeper than others, but the physician says Mrs. Persinger was not seriously hurt.

DOWNES HIGH PRIEST OF XENIA CHAPTER

William C. Downes was elected most excellent high priest of Xenia Chapter, No. 36, R. A. M., at the annual election of officers which featured the regular meeting at the Masonic Temple Thursday night.

Mr. Downes succeeds William Maxwell, who was elected excellent king of the Chapter. Other officers chosen for the coming year are: J. W. Gardner, St., excellent scribe; Charles Briel, captain of hosts; Dr. A. C. McCormick, principal sejourner; H. J. Reinhardt, royal arch captain; Watkins Frame, treasurer; J. H. Whitmer, secretary; Karl R. Buck, grand master third veil; B. F. Cranor, grand master second veil; B. U. Bell, grand master first veil, and E. D. Partington, guard.

Refreshments were also served following the business session.

HOMER HAINES WILL HEAD MASONIC BODY

Homer H. Haines was elected worshipful master of New Burlington Masonic Lodge, at the regular meeting, Tuesday evening.

The other officers were elected as follows: Harold M. VanPelt, senior warden; Charles E. Brackney, junior warden; Welden N. McKay, treasurer; Robert D. Collett, secretary; Russell N. Stingley,

FORMER ANTIOCH STUDENT MARRIED

The marriage of Miss Virginia Cromwell Schachne, daughter of Mrs. Abram Schachne, Dayton, and former student at Antioch Academy and College, Yellow Springs, to Mr. John Warren Humphrey, Birmingham, Mich., was solemnized with impressive dignity at the home of the bride's mother, on Superior Ave., Thursday evening.

Mrs. Humphrey is a sister of Mrs. Lewis Tingley, Louisville, Ky., formerly of Xenia. Upon their return from their honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Humphrey will reside in Anderson, Ind., where Mr. Humphrey is associated with the Delco-Remy Co.

XENIAN MARRIED IN CLARKSVILLE

Mr. Ira Williams, of Xenia and Miss Mary Pennington of Clarksville, O., were united in marriage Wednesday morning at the home of the bride.

The Rev. Mr. Tucker of the First M. E. Church, Clarksville, performed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Williams have gone to house-keeping on Columbus St., this city.

Fire Chief William Hanifan fractured his right thumb, when an auto he was cranking to answer a fire alarm, "backfired" and struck his hand, several days ago.

Mr. A. E. Kelble, advertising compositor at THE GAZETTE is confined to his home on S. West St., by an attack of grip.

BUSINESS WOMEN HEAR

MRS. GEYER IN TALK

All opportunity to obtain a clear insight into the home and market line of China and to admire many beautiful things brought from that country was given members of the Xenia Business and Professional Women's Club, when Mrs. Carrie D. Geyer, told the club of her three years' stay in China, at the monthly club meeting Thursday evening.

After vividly describing her visit in the Orient, Mrs. Geyer gave the members an opportunity for a "questionnaire" on that country and she answered each question with clarity and in an entertaining way. During her talk, various souvenirs she brought from the Orient were displayed and admired.

A charming song program was presented by Miss Zella Soward during dinner. Preceding Mrs. Geyer's talk, Miss Soward graciously responded with several encores and her numbers were appreciated by the club.

The dinner tables presented a pretty sight with Colonial corsages, the gift of Mrs. Floyd Anderson, a member of the club, which were placed at each cover.

The usual business meeting was held after dinner and Mrs. Geyer's talk followed.

Mrs. Frank Scott and Mrs. Daisy Rectores have invited a number of friends to enjoy a thimble party at Mrs. Scott's home on W. Second St., Tuesday afternoon.

Order of the Eastern Star, No. 262, will entertain with an evening party in the reception parlors of the Masonic Temple Monday evening, November 19, at 7:30 o'clock. All members are cordially invited.

The W. H. O. Sunday School Class of the U. B. Church was entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Ridgeon, S. Monroe St., Thursday evening. A business meeting and election of officers were held, followed by refreshments and a social time.

A special meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary will be held in Post Hall, Monday evening, November 19 at 7:30 o'clock. The regular business will be transacted at this meeting.

Mrs. Fred Baldwin and Mrs. B. F. Thomas were representatives from the local Pythian Sisters lodge to the twenty-seventh annual session of Pythian Sisters from the second district, held in Dayton, Thursday.

The Home Guards and Kings Heralds of the First M. E. Church will meet at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon in the basement of the church. All children between the ages of 6 and 14 are invited to be present.

McGervey Class, Trinity M. E. Church, will meet at the home of Mrs. H. W. Collett, 532 S. Detroit St., Monday evening.

Miss Mary Hornick, N. King St., is spending a week in Dayton, the guest of Mrs. Edward Keller.

Baby's Skin Kept Clear

Children always seem to be getting some sort of skin trouble—a rash, chafing, or more serious eczema. Often the irritation itches, and the infant's scratching leads to infection. For such disorders, thousands of mothers have found that Resinol possesses almost startling powers of relief. Resinol Soap, too, for baby's daily bath. At all druggists.

Mrs. Carrie D. Geyer, who has been delivering a series of talks on her three-year stay in China, gave an interesting account of her trip and displayed the articles she brought from the Orient.

Mrs. Richard McClelland sang two solos, accompanied by Miss Margaret Steele.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smith, Cincinnati, who have been visiting Mrs. Smith's parents, Mr. and Mrs. De Graff, E. Market St., have returned home.

Dr. and Mrs. N. T. Pavey have invited a group of Xenia friends as their dinner guests at their home in Springfield Monday night.

Mr. Gerald Kelble, W. Second St., who has been ill sometime, has been suffering from pleurisy several days but is slightly improved.

Mrs. George McKee, Chestnut St., has gone to Pleasant Prairie, Wis., to remain until after Christmas with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence McKee.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Homan, Cleveland, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. George Lewis, Indian Ripple Road.

Mrs. Howard Norris, Hill St., is spending three weeks in Florida, visiting relatives and friends.

Mrs. Walter Flomerfelt, St. Detroit St., is spending two weeks with her son and daughter-in-law, Mrs. and Mrs. Walter Flomerfelt, Jr., Detroit, Mich.

CANDIDATES FAIL TO FILE EXPENSES

A majority of the candidates at Greene County's election November 6 have neglected to file their campaign expense accounts with the board of elections, although the time for filing expires at midnight Friday, ten days after the election, according to R. E. Dunkel, clerk of the board.

Only ten candidates had filed by Friday morning, no new accounts having been submitted Thursday. Election board officials warn candidates against delinquency in filing their expense accounts.

WOMAN IS INDIRECT VICTIM OF FIRST HUNTING ACCIDENT

Mrs. George Persinger, 50, wife of a prominent Jamestown Pike farmer near Rosemoor, was an indirect victim of the hunting season, the first reported in the county, Thursday.

Mrs. Persinger is being treated at the office of Dr. R. L. Haines, Jamestown, after twenty-two shots from a twelve-gauge shotgun, struck her Thursday afternoon.

She was in the kitchen of her home preparing dinner, when Mr. Persinger returned from a hunting trip. He began to unload his gun outside the door, when it was accidentally discharged.

The charge pierced the closed door and shot struck the linoleum on the kitchen floor and were deflected to where Mrs. Persinger was seated. The shot imbedded themselves in her body from her ankle to her neck. One hundred shot remained in the door.

Mrs. Persinger was rushed to Dr. Haines' office, where the shot were removed. Some imbedded in the flesh deeper than others, but the physician says Mrs. Persinger was not seriously hurt.

HOMER HAINES WILL HEAD MASONIC BODY

Homer H. Haines was elected worshipful master of New Burlington Masonic Lodge, at the regular meeting, Tuesday evening.

The other officers were elected as follows: Harold M. VanPelt, senior warden; Charles E. Brackney, junior warden; Welton N. McKay, treasurer; Robert D. Collett, secretary; Russell N. Stingley,

Mr. Downs succeeds William Maxwell, who was elected excellent king of the Chapter. Other officers chosen for the coming year are: J. W. BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

GOD'S WONDERS—I will open rivers in high places, and fountains in the midst of the valleys: I will make the wilderness a pool of water, and the dry land springs of water.—Isa. 41:18.

THE NEXT THINGS ON THE PROGRAM

Now that the political campaign is over, and national interests can be spoken of without a suspicion of political pulling and hauling, here are some of the projects that Americans are fixing their minds and hearts upon for the greater glory and credit of this nation.

Mississippi river work. This is important and urgent. It is just being started. It will take many years to complete, and its thorough completion will include widespread construction of levees, spillways, reservoirs and canals, and will also require a patient and thoroughgoing program of reforestation. Water storage for irrigation is an integral part of the work. Deepening and widening of the navigable channel of the Mississippi, and the growth of river-bore commerce is an essential corollary of the river improvement program. Once this Mississippi job is properly done, the central portion of this mighty national domain will be able to contribute more than ever before to the strength and wealth of America.

The Nicaragua Canal. This is a national undertaking that is being delayed too long. Its completion is essential to the nation's safety and commercial growth. It ought to be begun now and carried rapidly to completion.

The Boulder Dam project, and development of Muscle Shoals. Here are undertakings that will, when completed, add vastly to the national wealth. They have been too long neglected. Let us not wait for another war to prod us on to the realization of these two legitimate national dreams.

Building and improvement of great highways. More and more, as heavy motor traffic grows, we are compelled to realize the need for some super-highways, longer and straighter and wider and deeper than any now in existence. There should be, first, a highway from New York to California, wide enough for airplanes to alight upon in emergency, and without a single railroad crossing at grade. It should be four times as wide as the standard highway of the present time, and deep and solid enough to insure useful existence for a thousand years, at least. Such a highway will come, in time. Traffic will demand it, not only from coast to coast, but north and south, and around the rim of the continent. We have just begun to appreciate highways.

Now is a good time to begin planning for national and state works that will make this nation permanently strong and united.

NINE BILLION DOLLARS WORTH

A recent estimate states that over $9,000,000,000 has been spent for state, county, federal and local road construction in the last 10 years.

Highways were once luxuries; today they are absolute necessities. They bring prosperity and progress, growth and industrialism, the four great elements of our present civilization.

The Way of the World

By GROVE PATTERSON

POOR PSYCHOLOGY

Motorists in the Adirondacks speed past the sign, "Historical tablet, stop and read!" They rather enjoy disobeying the unattractive command. They discover later that the tablet marks the spot where Theodore Roosevelt became president of the United States. They regret they hadn't slowed up to learn the details.

If the predatory warning said, "Where Roosevelt Became President," and carried an arrow indicating the tablet, not a tourist would pass. That sign would get attention, and attention-getting is the foundation of good psychology.

WHAT DO YOU SEE

What you see depends on you. One man goes to Africa and sees nothing but sweating, Carveth Wells, for instance, goes and comes back with the tale of snow at the equator, nine-foot parsley, and heather that grows 50 feet tall.

The difference between a good reporter and a poor one is the ability to see.

NICARAGUA

It is not strange that few persons have an accurate conception of the situation in Nicaragua. What happens there doesn't seem to be of personal importance. Few can see that it is going to affect their work, their recreation or their life in any way. Col. Henry Welles Durham brings from Managua a new picture of the Nicaraguans. He says they're not half so riotous as the people of the United States, and that Sandino is small fry. It is interesting to know that the situation was over-estimated rather than minimized.

TALK TO LONDON?

Do you have any occasion to talk with a friend or business associate across the sea? Within a year or so you will be able to telephone him, your voice being carried the entire distance by wire. A permylon cable, new metal, has overcome the obstacles which prevented trans-ocean telephony without the assistance of wireless.

EASY GOING

There is a lot of easy going in America which we do not appreciate until we compare conditions here with those in some other countries. In England there is a tax of five dollars per horse power on autos and an eight cent per gallon tax on gasoline. To meet the demand of those who cannot afford much, manufacturers offer small cars with ten horse power. This means a fifty dollar tax, but the cars will do 45 miles or more on a gallon of gasoline.

It is interesting to note that American motor cars are not selling as freely in England as they once did. While in the first quarter of 1927 the number of American automobiles imported into England was 307,000, in the corresponding quarter of 1928 it fell to 200,000. The department of commerce figures show that in the second quarter of 1927, 444,000 American automobiles were imported, while the number in the second quarter of 1928 had fallen to 256,000.

THIS TOWN OF OURS

NEW YORK.—The Ralph (N. Y. World publisher) Pulitzer (Peggy Leech) anticipate a blessed event... Ziegfeld is bargaining to land Clara Bow-vo-deo-doh for the talking moving version of "Show Femme."

Thought: Then there's the type of friend who never flirts with a chum's girl—if the chum is looking.

A "rumor" has H. B. Swope, retiring managing editor of the Morning World, heading Radio Corp. "I Can't Give You Anything But Love" is the current champ seller, doing 200,000 daily these famine days when a 50,000 sheet-music sale is considered a wow... Earl Carroll and Dorothy Knapp, coincidental enough, were secretly ailing at the same time at the Sherman Sq. Hosp. recently. The local supply of pash poison is not so hot.

J. P. McVoy has sold his interest in "Americana," which closed Sateen night after a week. Bugs Baer, who is also ghosting the Moran and Mack newspaper stuff, has a fortnight in which to rewrite the revue which will feature J. Tennen. Eighty-one mendicants call West 45th street their beat. J. O'Connor's "B'way Racketeers" (Liverlight) is topping the ace sellers at Brentano's already. Daye Dayne, Warner Bros. actress, is divorcing Gene Weiner of Wall street.

Eleanor Bachman, of Philly sassiness (whose pappy is a partner in Parish & Co., the bond brokers), is the new exploiter for the Columbia Broadcasting System. Robert Montgomery's "Possession" has been signed by Sam Goldwyn to be Vilma Banky's new love interest, but it's a sickie. Equity will blaze away at another well-known ham, who walked out of "The Squealer" because a former "heart" joined the cast.

What clean play producer urged the Society of Authors, at its last meeting, to pass a resolution asking the Enoch Britannica not to permit George Jean Nathan to write on theatricals for that great tome? The society, however, voted down the motion. Amy Flasher, John Farrar's former sec, is reading phoreign phiction for Harper's, which will publish in tone form everything that the Statepost omitted from Eddie Cantor's current life story. The way says he calls his new mansion "The House That Ziegfeld's Jack Built" or "The Cantor Home For Girls." Heheh!

One of Life's best contributors is a tragic figure in Cincinnati. Guess what! Main Street reporter is mentioned throughout La Guinan's forthcoming gab flicker—uocho magoucha! Cosmo Hamilton is completing a new play, "The 45 Peeling," in London. It will be done here simultaneously. F. P. A. columnist, ties his youngest son on a clothesline in the yard of his Greenwich Village shack. George Bernard Shaw gets 65 cents per word from Yankee papers. Jim Tully, the hobo-writer, is tenancing at the Vanderbilt, if you please.

Automatic cocktail shakers that play "I've Got Those Alcoholic Blues"—and beer, cheese and crackers—are now considered smart among some of the snootier set. Pierre DeRohan, succeeded as critic on the American by G. W. Gabriel, late of the Sun, remains on the staff. The Gilbert Seldes will alcholiday in Bermuda. It cost a cold cream merchant 30 grand for the indorsement of a famous duchess, five going to the B'Way playboy who arranged the contact. The Zep "stowaway" was a "plant."

Kellygrams

By FRED C. KELLY

James Harvey Robinson, author of "The Mind in the Making," one of the most stimulating books of recent years, said to me one evening:

"In the long run, there are just two ways to get joy out of a costly possession—first to buy it, and then to give it away. There's a thrill in getting it, but this wears off. Just having it is no longer much fun. The only way really to enjoy it, then, is to feel the satisfaction of being a benefactor and giving it to someone else."

HE KNEW

I like that story of the Yankee journalist who went to interview a famous film star who had just been divorced from an even more famous husband.

"Why did I leave him?" she echoed. "Say, did you ever live with a genius?"

"Sure," said the reporter, fellow-moderately, "I live alone."

THE ONE-MINUTE PULPIT

Let him praise his name in the dance; let him sing praises unto him with the timbre and harp. For the Lord taketh pleasure in his people; he will beautify the meek with salvation. Let the saints be joyful in glory; let them sing aloud upon their beds.—Psalm, cxlix, 3-5.

NEWS COMMENT and VIEWS

MORE BLACK HAND TROUBLE

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—The National Council for the Prevention of War has the pacific reputation which its name suggests.

The Navy League of the United States is warlike, by repute. Yet, at least up to a certain point, Executive Secretaries Frederick J. Libby of the National council and William M. Galvin of the Navy League, speak in fashions not at all unlike.

The council as Secretary Libby puts it, is not fighting so much for an immediate reduction in America's armament as to prevent its increase.

The league's aim, as Secretary Galvin explains it, is by no means a vast American armament, but simply to keep it from lagging behind the other world powers.

Almost in the same words, "Our own generation has had more than its fill of war," agree the two secretaries, "and wants no more of it."

But how about the next generation? And each shakes his head pessimistically—if our war-ignorant children are left to pick their own pathway, its pitfalls unmarked by their parents of today who found them by falling in.

Secretary Libby is more emphatic. Secretary Galvin concerning the duty of the present generation to provide the world machinery, which future generations can use, for the peaceful settlement of international disputes.

It is an urgent duty upon this generation, he points out, because this one knows the need of it as future generations will not—unless they learn it in the school of war. And then, he adds, it will be too late—civilization cannot survive another great war.

Secretary Galvin, in fact, suggests no peace machinery at all. Nevertheless, he does not deny international armament limitations. On the contrary, he discusses it as a practical possibility, down to but little more than a police force basis—provided there is limitation all 'round.

Here again Secretary Libby is in substantial accord with him—he holds no brief for American disarmament alone.

Still, the National council and the Navy league are sure to clash next winter, when congress takes up the Kellogg anti-war plan and the new cruiser bill—not over either of these two propositions separately, but over the two of them mixed.

Secretary Libby's position is: "It would be hypocritical in us to enter into the peace pact and begin fresh cruiser building at the same time."

Secretary Galvin contends: "No peace pact should blind us to the fact that our cruiser fleet is weak and ought to be brought up to par, unless others are prepared to reduce to our level or thereabouts. It would be no contribution to world peace prospects for us to do otherwise."

The argument is certain to be a red-hot one on Capitol Hill within the next few weeks.

In anticipation of it, I took the precaution to have this little advance talk with the spokesmen of what will be the two opposing groups which will argue in time and space the he-d-a-quar-ter's in Washington are only a couple of blocks apart.

It surprised me to find how near together, in many ways, their views are, too.

Doctors say every adult should drink a pint of milk a day, every child a quart. Milk drinking is largely a habit. You can train yourself to like it and plan to give it to the family in some form so that they get their quota. The quantities in the above menu were planned for four people.

Today's Recipes

Sweet Potatoes—Pare, boil and mash six sweet potatoes. Season with salt, butter and cream and spread in buttered casserole. Top with marshmallows and bake in slow oven 30 minutes.

Baked Pork Chops—Dip small lean pork chops in flour. Brown in small amount of drippings, or butter, place closely together in baking dish, salt; cover with sweet milk and bake in moderate oven, covered, for 5 minutes, and the last fifteen minutes without a cover to allow them to brown. If milk is absorbed while cooking add a little more. Milk will all absorb, and chops will be brown, tender and delicious.

Rice Griddle Cakes
(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe.)
One cup flour, three-fourths cup cooked rice, three teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon salt, two teaspoons sugar, one-half cup milk, one tablespoon melted butter. Mix and sift flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Add rice and melted butter, egg (well beaten) and milk to make batter. Beat well. Another egg may be added to make doubly delicious.

If you want to take, try cultivating the "up-lift" habit. Keep your head up. Stretch those lazy chin muscles until the fatty tissues give way in self-defense.

It will prove an excellent beginning, and it will aid ably in the other treatments I am going to suggest to you.

If you take my advice, you will set aside a definite time night and morning for your home beauty treatment. Not when you arise—I know perfectly well the hurry and rush that attends the early morning hours, and any treatment you give yourself when you are tense and nervous will prove quite hopelessly second-rate in results. Isn't there a quarter of an hour just before lunch time that you could call your own and keep just for the one purpose of coaxing your face back to youthfulness?

At night it isn't so difficult. Ten minutes can always be added to your bath hour, even if it does take ten minutes away from bed. It will be well worth it in the long run.

Remember, every one of you, wherever you are, that it's mighty poor business to permit your face to look one bit less good looking than it can be! You don't have to be pretty, M. B. Stop wishing for the unattainable, and take a beauty inventory of yourself. Your face doesn't have to be pretty according to the standards of the artists. Your nose doesn't have to be perfectly straight, or your eyes dark and lovely. What you do have to do is look alive, interested, well-groomed and well cared for.

Well, to begin the age-care.

Many T. B. Patients Recover In Their Own Back Yards

Tuberculosis Problem
"Please advise through your column just what you would do if you had contracted tuberculosis and had no funds to place yourself in a healthful climate or to go to a sanitarium, but had to stay on the job and work for your subsistence and thereby neglect doing the things that should be done to bring about an arrest of the disease. The writer would like to go to a high and dry climate where there is lots of sunshine and a chance to rest, but cannot see a way to do so."

"BOOKKEEPER."

You must get in touch with some anti-tuberculosis society and they will certainly see that you are taken care of. Bookkeeper, if you do not know of any of these societies in your state, write to the National Tuberculosis Association, 370 Seventh Avenue, New York City.

While it is undoubtedly better for a tuberculosis patient to be in a dry climate, many do recover from tuberculosis in their own back yards—we might say in their own back yards—for part of the treatment of tuberculosis is living out of doors most of the time.

We have an article on t. b. you may have by observing the column rules.

Fibroid Tumors

Mrs. K. There is a certain tumor of the uterus known as fibroid tumor which is very common around middle age—very common. It is also common in the prostate gland of men around middle age. Unless these tumors grow rapidly and cause pressure symptoms, or are near the lining so that they cause hemorrhage, or cause symptoms in other ways, they are not considered dangerous. They almost always disappear after the menopause.

Treatments with radium or X-ray will bring on the menopause and cause the tumors to shrink. See your doctor about yours, and if you are sure he is a competent physician abide by his decision as to what you should do.

Mrs. C. — I don't know the sanitarium in your locality. But a sanitarium will take your own diagnosis as to what you need. Mrs. C., whether it was in the line of a fast or anything else you would have to be examined by their physicians and abide by what they believed to be the best treatment.

A 30 or 40 day fast is an extremely long fast, and in some cases is very dangerous. As fast as fasting for your nasal catarrh, if it will help. The mucous membranes are markedly affected by deficiencies in the diet and certainly on a fast you would have a total deficiency.

Even though you are over weight, I would not advise you to go on such a long fast. A semi-fast for two or three days, only taking nothing but fruit juices or skim milk, or a combination of these, totalling not more than 600 to 800 C. a day, is very beneficial. After this semi-fast, the proper course is to limit your calories and increase your exercises—if no reason exists why you should not exercise—so that you will lose at the rate of about one and a half to two pounds a week. We have a pamphlet on over-weight, and an article on colds and catarrh which you may have.

Mrs. M. — Nightmares to the extent that your daughter has them may indicate some physical trouble or possibly a mental worry. Have her go to a reliable physician for a thorough check-up and tell him about this condition.

WHAT VICE COULD HUBBY HAVE IF YOU COULD MAKE A CHOICE?

You can't marry a perfect man, girls. A man is bound to have some faults. The trouble is, that not matter what friend husband's pet vice may be, his wife feels that she could better overlook any other. To the wife of the man who is addicted to idle dalliance with "girl friends" this is the worst possible fault, while the life partner of the unattractive man who she had a handsome husband. The woman whose husband is so immersed in business that he never can give her a minute of his time, thinks if she had a "home body" for a mate she would be perfectly happy, while the woman who has such a husband yearns for a man who is big in the business world. One can be "proud of," as she puts it. The tragedy of one marriage is the drinking man, while of another it is the stingy penny-pinching kind.

And so it goes. The writer of the following letter, undoubtedly think she could condone any fault more easily than the one she speaks of.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a constant reader of your column. Now, Mrs. Lee, I derive a great deal from them, and I am writing you my problem. Please print it in the paper so other erring husbands may read and maybe change their way of doing. My husband has been corresponding with a girl. I have asked him not to do so, and he didn't write to her. Now Mrs. Lee, I am in a predicament of a perfect letter written by her to him, so containing her photo. Do you think after a husband does these things he is worthy of your love? I have lost confidence in him and cannot rely on anything he says. We have two children. Must I live in this way?"

It depends on how much you love him, and whether you can bring yourself to overlook this fault rather than another. There are men who attract other women and no one can fault their age or how fond they are of their wives—are attracted to other members of the fair sex. Be sure of your facts in a matter like this. It may be that the infatuation is all on the girl's side, you know. If he is deceiving you, of course you cannot help losing faith in him; but will it help to leave him and struggle on to support and care for the children? However, rather than a contentious, unhappy home, with no faith or love between father and mother, better take them away and make a home for them by yourself.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am desperately in love with a young man, and here is the trouble: time. He makes a date and he treats me so mean. He won't go with me half of the week and then comes back and never mentions it. He has told some of my friends that he is crazy about me. When he is with me he treats me lovely and tells me he loves me. Yet he treats me so mean. I am forced to doubt it. The really isn't any use trying to force a year and I am crazier about him than ever. When I am away from him I can hardly live until I see him again. What would you suggest?"

"QUEENIE"

Give him a dose of his own medicine, Queenie. Make a date with him and break it and offer him explanation. See how he likes that. A little competition might stimulate his manners. Don't be a doormat, even if you are crazy about him.

Peter's Adventure

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

IN FLYING FORMATION

Great-grandfather was amazed—so amazed that he came within an ace of alighting right on the top of Peter's head. The boy jumped back just in time and Grandfather came down with both feet on the ground.

"Whew! I almost sprained my toe that time," gasped Great-Grandfather. "I never came to earth so quickly in my life. Take a Two-Legs as a guest to the Great Woods! What a sight! I've never heard of such a thing! However, I don't suppose there is any reason why you shouldn't, if you promise to look after him. The fellows will be glad to have him if he doesn't get in their way."

"Oh, sir, I wouldn't do that!" explained Peter, hastily, and—"I'll have to be a good time and enough to eat," promised Dove. "I know where there are some fine big nuts, you know."

"Then all right, grandson, bring him along. I'll take the others who are coming. Hope you have a good time. Two-Legs," said Great-Grandfather, politely, and hastened off to take his place at the head of the flying column.

Dove did his best to catch up to his brothers. Peter held his breath, so fast did they fly, but soon lost all his fear watching the maneuvers of the fleet.

Behind Great-Grandfather who flew off by himself, as was fitting for the head of so great a family to do, came his sons and his daughters and all his grandchildren, and they sailed so closely together that the boy wondered.

During the air transportation of 1912 tons of silver, valued at $350,000, from Paris to Croy, England, in a recent month, all pilots were armed with revolvers.

On his departure from Hull, England, recently, Rev. F. Woodman was presented a case of pipes by customers of the saloon outside of which he had held religious services.

ed how in the world they ever managed to get along without getting their wings mixed up.

Before long they came to a place where two roads crossed. Looking down, Peter thought that they looked like long white ribbons that some one had unwound and trailed through green fields and left them there, for getting to roll them up again. Near the spot where these ribbons met stood an old gray stone house, and over the roof of this house above the road that ran from the right came flying an old flock of pigeons and joined Great-Grandfather's fleet.

A bit farther ahead, Peter spied a brook and there a third body of feathered aeroplanes added themselves to the procession.

This happened again and again all along the route until at last Peter, who at first had been in the very back row, was up in the front ranks. The boy shifted his position and carefully looked over his shoulder, and behind him as far as his eyes could see stretched out the flying column.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

GOD'S WONDERS—I will open rivers in high places, and fountains in the midst of the valleys: I will make the wilderness a pool of water, and the dry land springs of water.—Isa. 41:18.

THE NEXT THINGS ON THE PROGRAM

Now that the political campaign is over, and national interests can be spoken of without a suspicion of political pulling and hauling, here are some of the projects that Americans are fixing their minds and hearts upon for the greater glory and credit of this nation.

Mississippi river work. This is important and urgent. It is just being started. It will take many years to complete, and its thorough completion will include widespread construction of levees, spillways, reservoirs and canals, and will also require a patient and thoroughgoing program of reforestation. Water storage for irrigation is an integral part of the work. Deepening and widening of the navigable channel of the Mississippi, and the growth of river-bore commerce is an essential corollary of the river improvement program. Once this Mississippi job is properly done, the central portion of this mighty national domain will be able to contribute more than ever before to the strength and wealth of America.

The Nicaragua Canal. This is a national undertaking that is being delayed too long. Its completion is essential to the nation's safety and commercial growth. It ought to be begun now and carried rapidly to completion.

The Boulder Dam project, and development of Muscle Shoals. Here are undertakings that will, when completed, add vastly to the national wealth. They have been too long neglected. Let us not wait for another war to prod us on to the realization of these two legitimate national dreams.

Building and improvement of great highways. More and more, as heavy motor traffic grows, we are compelled to realize the need for some super-highways, longer and straighter and wider and deeper than any now in existence. There should be, first, a highway from New York to California, wide enough for airplanes to alight upon in emergency, and without a single railroad crossing at grade. It should be four times as wide as the standard highway of the present time, and deep and solid enough to insure useful existence for a thousand years, at least. Such a highway will come, in time. Traffic will demand it, not only from coast to coast, but north and south, and around the rim of the continent. We have just begun to appreciate highways.

Now is a good time to begin planning for national and state works that will make this nation permanently strong and united.

NINE BILLION DOLLARS WORTH

A recent estimate states that over $9,000,000,000 has been spent for state, county, federal and local road construction in the last 10 years.

Highways were once luxuries; today they are absolute necessities. They bring prosperity and progress, growth and industrialism, the four great elements of our present civilization.

POOR PSYCHOLOGY

Motorists in the Adirondacks speed past the sign, "Historical tablet, stop and read." They rather enjoy disobeying the unattractive command. They discover later that the tablet marks the spot where Theodore Roosevelt became president of the United States. They regret they didn't slow down to learn the details.

If the preparatory warning said, "Where Roosevelt Became President," and carried an arrow indicating the tablet, not a tourist would pass. That sign would get attention, and attention-getting is the foundation of good psychology.

WHAT DO YOU SEE

What you see depends on you. One man goes to Africa and sees nothing but sweating, Carveth Wells, for instance, goes and comes back with the tale of snow at the equator, nine-foot parsley, and heather that grows 50 feet tall.

The difference between a good reporter and a poor one is the ability to see.

NICARAGUA

It is not strange that few persons have an accurate conception of the situation in Nicaragua. What happens there doesn't seem to be of personal importance. Few can see that it is going to affect their work, their recreation or their life in any way. Col. Henry Welles Durham brings from Managua a new picture of the Nicaraguans. He says they're not half so riotous as the people of the United States, and that Sandino is small fry. It is interesting to know that the situation was over-estimated rather than minimized.

TALK TO LONDON?

Do you have any occasion to talk with a friend or business associate across the sea? Within a year or so you will be able to telephone him, your voice being carried the entire distance by wire. A permalloy cable, new metal, has overcome the obstacles which prevented trans-oceanic telephony without the assistance of wireless.

EASY GOING

There is a lot of easy going in America which we do not appreciate until we compare conditions here with those in some other countries. In England there is a tax of five dollars per horse power on autos and an eight cent per gallon tax on gasoline. To meet the demand of those who cannot afford much, manufacturers offer small cars with ten horse power. This means a fifty dollar tax, but the cars will do 45 miles or more on a gallon of gasoline.

It is interesting to note that American motor cars are not selling as freely in England as they once did. While in the first quarter of 1927 the number of American automobiles imported into England was 307,000, in the corresponding quarter of 1928 it fell to 200,000. The department of commerce figures show that in the second quarter of 1927, 444,000 American automobiles were imported, while the number in the second quarter of 1928 had fallen to 256,000.

MORE BLACK HAND TROUBLE

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—The National Council for the Prevention of War has the pacific reputation which its name suggests.

The Navy League of the United States is warlike, by repute. Yet, at least up to a certain point, Executive Secretaries Frederick J. Libby of the National council and William M. Galvin of the Navy league, speak in fashions not at all unlike.

The council as Secretary Libby puts it, is not fighting so much for an immediate reduction in America's armament as to prevent its increase.

The league's aim, as Secretary Galvin explains it, is by no means a vast American armament, but simply to keep it from lagging unduly behind the other world powers.

Almost in the same words, "Our own generation has had more than its fill of war," agree the two secretaries, "and wants no more of it."

And each shakes his head pessimistically—if our war-ignorant children are left to pick their own pathway, its pitfalls unmarked by their parents of today who found them by falling in.

Secretary Libby is more emphatic than Secretary Galvin concerning the duty of the present generation to provide the world machinery, which future generations can use, for the peaceful settlement of international disputes.

It is an urgent duty upon this generation, he points out, because this one knows the need of it as future generations will not unless they learn it in the school of war. And then, he adds, it will be too late—civilization cannot survive another great war.

Secretary Galvin, in fact, suggests no peace machinery at all. Nevertheless, he does not deny international armament limitations. On the contrary, he discusses it as a practical possibility, down to but little more than a police force basis—provided there is limitation all 'round.

Here again Secretary Libby is in substantial accord with him—he holds no brief for American disarmament alone.

Still, the National council and the Navy league are sure to clash next winter, when congress takes up the Kellogg anti-war plan and the new cruiser bill—not over either of these two propositions separately, but over the two of them mixed.

Secretary Libby's position is: "It would be hypocritical in us to enter into the peace pact and begin fresh cruiser building at the same time."

Secretary Galvin contends: "No peace pact should blind us to the fact that our cruiser fleet is weak and ought to be brought up to par, unless others are prepared to reduce to our level or thereabouts. It would be no contribution to world peace prospects for us to do otherwise."

The argument is certain to be a red-hot one on Capitol Hill within the next few weeks.

In anticipation of it, I took the precaution to have this little advance talk with the spokesmen of what will be the two opposing groups which was easy, for their respective headquarters in Washington are only a couple of blocks apart.

It surprised me to find how near together, in many ways, their views are, too.

Doctors say every adult should drink a pint of milk a day, every child a quart. Milk drinking is largely a habit. You can train yourself to like it and plan to give it to the family in some form so that they get their quota. The quantities in the above menu were planned for four people.

Today's Recipes

Sweet Potatoes—Pare, boil and mash six sweet potatoes. Season with salt, butter, and cream and spread in buttered casserole. Top with marshmallows and bake in slow oven 30 minutes.

Baked Pork Chops—Dip small lean pork chops in flour. Brown in small amount of drippings, or butter, place closely together in baking dish, salt, cover with sweet milk and bake in moderate oven, covered, for 5 minutes, and the last fifteen minutes without a cover to allow them to brown. If milk is absorbed while cooking add a little more. Milk will all absorb, and chops will be brown, tender and delicious.

Rice Griddle Cakes
(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe.)

One cup flour, three-fourths cup cooked rice, three teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon salt, one tablespoon sugar, one-half cup milk, one tablespoon melted butter. Mix and sift flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Add rice and melted butter, egg (well beaten) and milk to make batter. Beat well. Another egg may be added to make doubly delicious.

You want to take, try cultivating the "up-lift" habit. Keep your head up. Stretch those lazy chin muscles until the fatty tissues give way in self-defense.

It will prove an excellent beginning, and it will aid ably in the other treatments I am going to suggest to you.

If you take my advice, you will set aside a definite time night and morning for your home beauty treatment. Not when you are busy—I know perfectly well the hurry and rush that attends the early morning hours, and any treatment you give yourself when you are tense and nervous will prove quite hopelessly second-rate in results. Isn't there a quarter of an hour just before lunch time that you could call your own and keep just for the one purpose of coaxing your face back to youthfulness?

At night it isn't so difficult. Ten minutes can always be added to your bath hour, even if it does take ten minutes away from bed. It will be well worth it in the long run.

Well, to begin the age-care.

"Please advise through your column just what you would do if you had contracted tuberculosis and had no funds to place yourself in a healthful climate or to go to a sanitarium, but had to stay on the job and work for your subsistence and thereby neglect doing the things that should be done to bring about an arrest of the disease. The writer would like to go to a high and dry climate where there is lots of sunshine and a chance to rest, but cannot see a way to do so."

You must get in touch with some anti-tuberculosis society and they will certainly see that you are taken care of. Bookkeeper, you do not know of any of these societies in your state, write to the National Tuberculosis Association, 370 Seventh Avenue, New York City.

While it is undoubtedly better for a tuberculosis patient to be in a dry climate, many do recover from tuberculosis in their own back yards—for part of the treatment of tuberculosis is living out of doors most of the time.

Fibroid Tumors

Mrs. K.—There is a certain tumor of the uterus known as fibroid tumor which is very common around middle age—very common. It is also common in the prostate gland of men around middle age. Unless these tumors grow rapidly and cause pressure symptoms, or are near the lining so that they cause hemorrhage, or cause symptoms in other ways, they are not considered dangerous. They almost always disappear after the menopause.

Kellygrams

By FRED C. KELLY

James Harvey Robinson, author of "The Mind in the Making," one of the most stimulating books of recent years, said to me one evening:

"In the long run, there are just two ways to get joy out of a costly possession—first to buy it, and then to give it away. There's a thrill in getting it, but this wears off. Just having it is no longer much fun. The only way really to enjoy it, then, is to feel the satisfaction of being a benefactor and giving it to someone else."

HE KNEW

I like that story of the Yankee journalist who went to interview a famous film star who had just been divorced from an even more famous husband.

"Why did I leave him?" she echoed. "Say, did you ever live with a genius?"

"Sure," said the reporter fellow, modestly, "I live alone."

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

The Price of Beauty Is Not Prohibitive

The first thing I'm going to do for you, my dear M. B., is to scold you well. I think that it's nothing short of criminal for a woman of your age, or ten years your senior, for that matter, to look as badly as you say you do.

Of course, I'm assuming that you are writing the literal truth when you tell me you are "aged beyond your years"—and haggard and old looking. I know just how easy it is to let your disposition color your entire view—even the mirrored view you have of yourself.

You tell me that now you are well enough off, but that for years you had to account for every single penny you spent, and that you had to sacrifice your pretty complexion to new farm machinery.

Before I forge ahead on your problem and tell you the things there are left for you to do now in the name of the many other women who may be now, where you were ten years ago, let me say that it is absolute nonsense—no other word is strong enough—to blame circumstances or a slender purse for a bad complexion or lines and wrinkles and all the other hallmarks of premature age. Do you know that I have actually known women who didn't have a dollar a year to spend on cosmetics, and yet looked splendid when they were well into their forties?

Suppose you can't buy bleaching cream. Surely, there isn't a woman alive who doesn't know about the whitening properties of cucumber and lemon juice. Suppose softening and nourishing creams are beyond your purse limits? What about honey and milk blended together into a smooth, creamy liquid? What about buttermilk, or even nut milk, if you are as low financially as all that. Why, your great grandmother and mine knew the homely ingredients which go into some of our most expensive modern beauty preparations.

Remember, every one of you, wherever you are, that it's not your poor business to permit your face to look one bit less good looking than it can be! You don't have to be pretty, M. B. Stop wishing for the unattainable, and take a beauty inventory of yourself. Your face doesn't have to be pretty according to the standards of the artists. Your nose doesn't have to be perfectly straight, or your eyes deep, dark and lovely. What you do have to do is look alive, interested, well-groomed and well cared for.

Well, to begin the age-care.

BENDER IS BOSS

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 16.—The Cuyahoga County delegation to the state legislature, by unanimous vote has selected State Senator Geo. H. Bender, as chairman. The position is considered important due to the fact that the Cleveland delegation is the largest in the assembly. It is composed of five senators and sixteen representatives. Senator Bender is the oldest member from point of service, in the legislature.

Why some children are peevish.
Happy disposition easily recovered.

Some children are liable to get bilious and irritable, just as grown-ups often do. It is easily remedied. Simply give a dose of "California Fig Syrup," and in a few hours the bowels will move, the liver will be relieved and all pent-up bile and sour, constipated waste removed, leaving the system clean and sweet and the child bright and energetic again.

"California Fig Syrup" banishes biliousness and constipation, regulates the bowels and insures pure blood, a clear complexion, joyous spirits, a keen brain, healthy appetite and aids sturdy growth.

To get the genuine California Fig Syrup, endorsed by physicians for 50 years, look for the name "California" on the package. Adv.

D. A. R. CHAPTER IS SPONSORING SPEECH BY ARMY OFFICER

Desiring the public to have the opportunity of joining with the society to hear the splendid address promised, Catharine Greene Chapter, D. A. R., is holding an open meeting next Wednesday evening, Nov. 21 at the Parish House, when Lieut. Col. William A. Mumm, of the Military Intelligence Section, United States Army Reserve, from Columbus, O., will give an address.

Lieut. Col. Mumm's subject will be "The Enemy Within Our Gates" and he is expected to handle the subject eloquently and in a manner seldom heard by Xenia audiences.

Members of civic organizations have been invited to attend the meeting. The address will begin at 8 o'clock.

ALLEGED CHICKEN THIEF BOUND OVER

Pleading guilty to burglary and larceny, Turley Glaze, 50, farm hand, alleged to have been implicated in the theft of nineteen chickens from the locked barn on the Charles C. Thomas farm, Wilmington Pike, late Wednesday night, was bound over to the grand jury by J. P. MacDwan, Xenia Twp. Justice of the peace, Friday. Glaze was remanded to the County Jail in default of $500 bond.

The affidavit was filed by Thomas, who captured Glaze single-handed as a result of a prearranged plan after stumbling over a sack containing chickens as he was starting out on a hunting trip at midnight. Thomas covered Glaze with a shotgun until deputies of the sheriff's office arrived, but a companion of the farm hand escaped and was still at large Friday despite an intensive search.

TELEGRAPH OFFICE FORCE AT SCHOOL

Wilbur Ritzer, Western Union branch manager here, will leave Sunday for Valparaiso, Ind., to enter the Western Union Telegraph School for a three months course in the operation of automatic telegram sending and receiving instruments.

Gene Klock, operator at the local office, went to Valparaiso last Sunday to take the same course. Ralph Quaglio, Richmond, Ind., will be manager of the Xenia office for the three months during the absence of the regular manager and J. E. Rupp, Marietta, will be operator here during that time.

When Ritzer and Klock complete their course of instruction they will return here and the office will begin using the automatic machines, which will do away with Morse code operation. The machines are already installed.

GLEE CLUB MEMBERS PLEASE CROWD WITH PERFORMANCE HERE

Those who boast that they "know a good show when they see one" should withhold their award of medals unless they saw the three-act musical comedy, "Miss Cherry Blossom" presented for the second and last time by the joint Boys' and Girls' Glee Clubs of Xenia Central High School in Jean B. Elwell Auditorium Thursday night before a large audience.

"Miss Cherry Blossom," scored a big landslide in applause. The show abounded with capable principals who greatly enlivened the proceedings by bringing good spirits and a genuine enthusiasm into their work.

Then there were chorus girls by the carload cavorting in true Ziegfeld form. The chorus girls were, generally speaking, of prime importance to this entertainment. This does not mean that the lineup of principals was lacking in talent, for they are not, but rather that the talented ensemble would be a foundation for any amateur show. Dora Hayward played the leading feminine role as Cherry Blossom and acquitted herself with importance, centering her energies largely on singing—and how. The male lead was taken by John Collins, as John Henry Smith and drew attention to himself by his singing.

The fun of the show was uproarious and was mainly furnished by Robert Adair as Kokemo. LaMar Bennett was well cast as Worthington and Charles Adair took the part of James Young.

Eileen Sayre had the role of Jessica Vanderpool, with Ralph Baldwin as Henry Foster Jones. Charles Zell also gave a fine portrayal of Togo, a Japanese politician of high rank.

Following were Japanese chorus girls: first soprano—Marjorie Burr, Virginia Guyton, Catherine Keller, Donna Devoe, Katherine Chew, Elsie Shaw, Doris McCormick, Mary Soward, Anna Street and Frances Marshall; second soprano—Betty Lorimer, Bernice Bath, Dorothy Lunsford, Lorene Acton, Evelyn Ary, Juanita McPherson, Helen Benbow, Estelle Blair, Mary Warwick, Gwendolyn Beeler, Helen Currie, Virginia Cross; alto—Mary Maxwell, Dorothy Crawford, Pauline Smith, Frances Williams.

son, Roberta Ralls, Mariane Lewis, Hazel Spellman, Helen Hacheck, Charlene Wilson and Freda Shaw. Personnel of the American chorus of five boys and six girls: Evelyn Osman, Yelda Jones, Marjorie Shoemaker, Emma Harness, Hazel Rector, Betty Kingsbury, Robert Maxwell, Lester Price, Robert Kinsey, Ronald Atkinson and Birch Bell.

Much credit for the production is due William Hugh Miller, musical director in the public schools, under whose supervision the comedy was staged. Mr. Miller also directed the nineteen-piece school orchestra which furnished the music.

FEW HUNTERS TAKE OUT NEW LICENSES

Accidents attributed to the opening day of the rabbit hunting season were conspicuous by their absence in Greene County Thursday, only one being reported.

At the clerk of courts office in the Court House slight demand for hunting licenses in comparison with past years was reported.

Only thirty-seven licenses were issued Wednesday, preceding the first day of the open season for hunting, while the average in recent years has been nearly seventy-five for the day prior to the opening.

So far this year 323 hunting licenses have been issued at the clerk of courts office.

DAWES MAKES PLEA

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 16.—A personal plea for the extension of federal highway No. 50 to include Marietta and Athens, was made by Vice President Charles G. Dawes at the annual convention of the American Association of Highways in Chicago yesterday. Dawes was born in Marietta. The highway now runs from Washington, westward through Parkersburg, W. Va. If the Marietta-Athens extension were made, the divisions of the highway would be known as North 50 and South 50.

THIRTEEN!

David A. Dillard, 18, Harrison, Tenn., one of the newly-arrived federal prisoners at the Greene County Jail, received here Tuesday, can personally testify that the number "13" is unlucky. At least it proved so for him.

Dillard was in federal court at Dayton Tuesday afternoon for arraignment on an indictment charging him with selling liquor while employed as a bellboy at a Dayton hotel.

It was the thirteenth day of the month and when Judge Smith Hickenlooper pronounced a sentence of forty days in the Greene County Jail as his punishment, the hands of the clock in the courtroom pointed at thirteen minutes after 3 o'clock.

Creamed Comments On S.S. Lesson

A great man must have a deep base and roots to his life. Luther, Washington, Lincoln—these did not grow out of a thin soil but had sources and secrets of strength that were hidden deep. All their outer activities were but the manifestation of their inner life. Paul hid his life with Christ and lived in fellowship with the Father. Prayer was the secret of his power.

Vs. 36-38—"He knelt down and prayed with them all."—The most appropriate attitude for prayer. The Psalmist says let us kneel before the Lord; Daniel knelt three times daily; Jesus sets the example of kneeling in prayer.

Vs. 14-15—"I... cease not to make mention of you in my prayers." Paul individualized and specialized in his prayers. He named Ephesian friends over and over, thanking God for each one.

Vs. 14-15—"Paul bowed his knees unto the Father." This is the first condition of prayer—a Father to whom we can pray. We do well to "bow our knees unto the Father from whom every family in heaven and on earth is named."

Vs. 16—"May be strengthened with power..." In the inner man. The inward man—that is the seat and source of strength. Nothing can come out of a great man that is not first in him. We must always get before we can give. The great men who have cut their way through history had tremendous inner resources which forced their way out and shaped the world.

Moses had the Ten Commandments written on his heart before he carved them on stone. To get power, we must get into right connection with the source of power. To be strengthened in the inner man we must get "power through his spirit" through faith and fellowship in prayer and obedience to God.

Vs. 17—"Rooted and grounded in love." This is the climax of divine blessing. The problem of human life at every point is to get more of God in us.

V. 18-21—"Unto him that is able to do exceedingly abundantly above all that we can ask or think." These words affect us something like a grand strain of music that is more than we can understand. But heaping up all the glorious words of even Paul's matchless vocabulary, yet we cannot fully paint the picture of the Christian's gratitude to Christ. Our thanksgiving must not stop with the present. But look forward to all eternity. One of the most fruitful of Christian exercises is prayer that contains no petition, but is entirely made up of thanksgiving for our many blessings. When we begin to thank God for them, we find it difficult to stop. The most complaining of us will never get to the end of acknowledged blessings.

Our thanksgiving must not stop with the present. But look forward to all eternity. One of the most fruitful of Christian exercises is prayer that contains no petition, but is entirely made up of thanksgiving for our many blessings. When we begin to thank God for them, we find it difficult to stop. The most complaining of us will never get to the end of acknowledged blessings.

V. 17—"Rooted and grounded in love." This is the climax of divine blessing. The problem of human life at every point is to get more of God in us.

V. 18-21—"Unto him that is able to do exceedingly abundantly above all that we can ask or think." These words affect us something like a grand strain of music that is more than we can understand. But heaping up all the glorious words of even Paul's matchless vocabulary, yet we cannot fully paint the picture of the Christian's gratitude to Christ. the men's meeting held each Sunday afternoon at the Bedford Branch of the Y. M. C. A. Brooklyn and broadcast over many radio stations throughout the country.

Mr. F. W. Ramsey, retired business man of Cleveland, now president of the local Y. M. C. A., has been unanimously selected to succeed John R. Mott as general secretary of the National Council of the Y. M. C. A. This is the first time in the history of the association this position has been offered to a man trained in the business world.

The new Gothic house of worship which the Peachtree Church of Disciples, Atlanta, Georgia, has just completed at a cost of a half million dollars has an unusual feature in the construction of the altar.

In the base of the altar there is a six point star symbolizing Judaism upon which Christianity historically rested. This star was cut from a blood red stone brought from Palestine as a gesture to present day Judaism across the chasm separating Jew and Christian. During the dedicatory services, a sermon was preached by Rabbi David Marx a Rabbi of Atlanta.

Catholic leaders in Mexico report that 200,000 students who normally should be educated in Mexico are now attending United States schools because of the closing two years ago of practically all the Catholic schools in Mexico.

The interest of parents calls for a life that will furnish an upward pull so that in the event of their death, the pull continues and the children are thus kept from going wrong.

Recently in a Cleveland home death claimed the father as he had claimed the mother a few months previously, leaving only a little girl of nine years of age. This little girl had formed the habit of writing her impressions daily in a diary. When her father passed into the great beyond, the following was found in her diary:

"I can't let my father go. I could cry. I loved him so. He can't talk to me any more. He can't say any kind word any more. I feel so badly. My father and mother are both dead. He can't write me any more letters. He can't take me to picture shows again. He can't do anything. Goodbye, Daddy, you are the dearest thing in the world to me. Oh, dear Daddy, I will try to be a good girl like you told me to be. Goodbye, Daddy, goodbye."

D. Carl Yoder.

There should be such a study of the church as to give due appreciation of the church; the history of the denomination has its place, not to make one narrow and bigoted but to see points of common agreement with other denominations; the central items should be Christ, a living dominating personality who becomes real through personal experience, real as a guide, as strength, as companion in real fellowship and communion; then there is the subject of stewardship, very essential for effective expression of the Christian life; the world outlook of Christian service in missionary endeavor as God's program is imperative; hymnology is a study of real merit, helpful in giving sentiment and force to right living; current national and world problems touching character calls for practical applications of Bible truths; a program of training in service needed for the church, the community and the world is appropriate.

Woe is outlawed. The signing of the multilateral treaty has opened the way for a new understanding of peace in the world. In the conception of the idea and in the proper support many of our bravest men, a new day has dawned in the life of the nations. Thought is a factor in changing the face of the earth greater than all the armies of all the nations in the world. If there is hesitation to confirm the treaty in the United States Senate, as had been intimated, the senators will be traitors to the highest good and the blood of the battlefields will cry out against them. If the Paris pact means anything it must mean that armaments have gone to their limit and henceforth we must talk in terms of reduction. The churches of the nations must so ring with the endorsement of the curfew of war that there shall be a conscience around the world to think in terms of the new standard for the adjustment of international disputes. The reality of all this is dependent upon the conscience of the world.

our butter, but how many of us think of the blessings which flow to us through faith and its fruits?

LESSON PRAYER

Dear Lord, we pray that this lesson study may give us more joy and power in prayer. May our prayers, like Paul's, be saturated through and through with genuine thanksgiving. May we be strengthened by the remembrance that we have infinite resources to draw on.

BOOK REVIEW

THE BACKGROUND OF THE BIBLE, by Henry Kendall Booth, Charles Scribner's Sons, New York, $2 is a hand-book of biblical introduction for those who have no time for detailed and extended study, but want a fairly comprehensive idea of the meanings and values of the Bible.

MISSIONARY EDUCATION IN THE CHURCH by Herbert Wright Gates, The Pilgrim Press, Boston and Chicago furnishes material for class study by those who are seeking to equip themselves as leaders in missionary education. It deals with general principles, methods, and materials and the application of these to the graded program.

Home Education THE UPWARD PULL

The interest of parents calls for a life that will furnish an upward pull so that in the event of their death, the pull continues and the children are thus kept from going wrong.

The Church Invites You

THE BEST HOUR
Roger Babson says, "The psalmist declared that a day in God's courts is better than a thousand days anywhere else. And we also declare that our best days have been our sanctuary days, when in common with worshipping thousands bowed in prayer in a thousand churches, there has been for us a 'movement of the soul toward God'."

How many others have a similar experience, real leaders in social, political and industrial life; you yourself remember your childhood days when you sat with your loved ones in a house of worship—those days were good days when you too realized "a movement of the soul toward God."

CHAPTER LII
When Emmy had dropped a light, careless kiss upon the top of her head and run down the stairs her mother stood for a long time in the middle of the shabby old room where her three children had been born. Her thought eyes were fixed upon the faded rug at her feet, as if she were reading something in the pattern of it.

Then presently she knelt and began to unpack the "telescope" bag. She laid all the neatly folded clothes back into the dresser drawers and set her one pair of extra shoes in the closet upon the floor. She put the white kid gloves back into a green satin glove box that had stood upon her dresser for a good many years. Then she showed the bag, itself, under the bed with her foot.
The door of the clothes closet that had always been her chapel and her sanctuary stood open. She closed it gently behind her when she stepped inside and got down upon her knees on the unpainted floor.

When Emmy walked out onto the porch of the little house Lovey's car was just turning into the driveway. It stopped in the crunching gravel and Lovey hailed her.
"Hello, Perfect Stranger! Where have you been lately? I thought you were going to ask us all over to your flat again for a house warming or some sort of celebration! You're a little four-flusher, you are!"

She giggled, and came running up to her, catching her by the arm and giving her a kiss. "But I'll forgive you, just so you won't think I'm Hard-hearted Hannah, and ask you to a tea I'm having tomorrow for an old school friend of mine. Do you remember my speaking of Daisy Harbison? I think you knew her or something, didn't you?" She frowned, trying to remember. But her memory, like her mind, was as shallow as a brook.

Emmy started violently. "Daisy Harbison! Yes, I remember your speaking of her to me. You told me her name was Charities when you knew her at school and that she had married a man named Harbison. Isn't that the girl you mean?" she asked on a shrill upward note.

Lovey nodded her head briskly. "Yes, that's the one. She's Mrs. Wells Harbison now. There was a picture of her on the society page in the morning's paper. She's been in Europe for perfect ages, and she's going to be here in town for a week or so."

She turned on her three-inch heel and started off down the driveway to the green back yard, where Perry was putting away his ladder and his pails and brushes. "Four o'clock tomorrow, Emmy," she called over her shoulder. "Now, don't fail to show up; I want you to sing, darling."

Robb came up in his blue overalls that smelled of turpentine and were debauched with white and yellow paint.

His lips moved, and Emmy tried to understand what he was saying to her. But she could hear nothing but Lovey's voice saying over and over: "She's Mrs. Wells Harbison now. She's Mrs. Wells Harbison now."

She stared at Robb blindly. "Going home, Emmy?" She could hear what he was asking her now. "If you are, I'll be glad to take you in the struggle-buggy."

But Emmy shook her head. "No thanks," she said, faintly; "no thanks, Robb. I'd rather walk. I think."

She wanted to be alone to think things out. Would it be wise to see Wells Harbison's wife? Perhaps it would. As things were, it was hard for Emmy to realize that he had a wife.

"I guess I'll go and take a look-see at her, anyway, and find out what she's like," she decided, and had a mental vision of a Mrs. Wells Harbison, who would be much like Lovey. Little and blond and beautifully dressed, with a string of real pearls. That would be Daisy Charities Harbison. The very name sounded frivolous.

"Please let me drive you home," Robb was pleading. "I haven't talked to you since Hector was a pup—a mere pup. Come on, let me sport and come along. I'll be your ashamed to be seen in the struggle-buggy."

So, just to prove that she was not at all ashamed of being seen in it, Emmy jumped into it and they started away from the house.

"The old place looks pretty slick, doesn't it?" Robb asked, when they had left Flower Street behind. "I'd be perfectly contented now if you were in it, Emmy."

Emmy's plying smile was as cruel as a sneer. "Well, I'm not, and I never will be, Robb," she told him, with decision. "By the time another May rolls around I shall probably be in a house of my own. I'm thinking seriously of getting married. You may as well know it—and you may as well take this back. Didn't you say I was to wear it only until I had promised to marry another man?"

She slipped the cheap little garnet-and-pearl ring from her engagement finger and held it out to him.

She saw him glance at it, start, and then grip the wheel until his knuckles whitened. He hesitated for a long moment before he took it, and dropped it into the pocket of his stained overalls.

"Who's the man, Emmy?" he asked quietly. "That bird you work for?"

"Yes," Emmy told him; "and you may as well know the worst, just as last, Robb. He's married and he's going to get a divorce to marry me. You think that's terrible, don't you? Mother does. She says that dream she had last night was a warning."

She laughed, but all at once she was very close to tears. It hurt her to hurt Robb, as she knew she was hurting him. Robb, who seemed so different and stolid, but who was as easily wounded as a sensitive child. . . . She found herself wanting to put her arms around him and tell him not to mind.

"You'll find some other girl, Robb," she said her hand on his for a second. "And you're making so much money now that you can give her a diamond instead of my garnet maybe. You'll forget me, won't you know you will?"

Instead of answering, Robb asked her a question. "Are you sure you're sure?" He looked straight at her with his brown, honest eyes that never hid anything—never pretended anything.

"Of course, I'm sure," said Emmy; "and I'm sure I'm going to be happy with him, too, if that's what you're getting at. He's just as good to me as he can be. He gives me the most wonderful things every time he comes to see me, and takes me for long, lovely drives in his car—the one you saw that Sunday when we drove down to Flower Street."

Robb nodded. "Yes, that was a good car," he said dryly.

Then, after a minute: "But, what's he like, himself, though?" Emmy laughed and looked at his paint-stained sleeves. "Disdainfully with her long piano fingers. 'Well, he never would be seen wearing a thing like that, for instance,' she said, cuttingly. 'He's a very well dressed and elegant, and he reads a lot of highbrow books, and he's never known what it's like to be poor. I came for him in a very different kind of way from the way I used to care for you, Robb. I look up to him. He seems wonderful to me.' Awkwardly she tried to put into words the thing that she did not understand, herself.

There was a long pause while the struggle-buggy did its valiant best to climb the little hill that rises from the boulevard near St. Clair street. It panted and strove, and at last it stopped at the side of the road.

Robb sat back in his seat and glowered at its old-fashioned hood. "Well, you!" he addressed it after a few seconds. "You're just like I am, aren't you? You just don't quite make the grade, do you?" His voice was filled with bitterness as he leaned forward and released the emergency brake. The struggle-buggy slid back down the hill into the park.

Robb stepped on the gas and made a second dash at the little hill. This time the struggle-buggy went over the top, sped around the corner to Emmy's apartment building, and stopped neatly and nimbly before the door.

"I'll take you upstairs to your flat," Robb said. "I look like a sign-board painter, 'tis true, but I have a nice open face and they might let me walk through the lobby with you." "He tried to laugh, but the sound that came from his throat was the dismal of sounds.

"No, thanks, I'll just run along. Don't you bother about me," Emmy said, and got out of the little car, with its absurd mud guards that hung down like a hound's ears.

She stood in her own doorway and watched it bound away and vanish down the hill into the deep twilight of the park.

It seemed to her that she was letting Robb go out of her life for good, this time, and she was filled with a keen sense of loss. He was her best friend anywhere, she told herself mournfully, and she never expected to care for anyone again quite as she had cared for him once upon a time. A warm tide of feeling swept over her as she thought of that long-ago time. . . . She never had felt toward Wells Harbison as she had felt toward Robb Hollis. Never.

Well, everyone said that first love—love with the bloom on it—was the best kind. And she had given him that. She had given him the best of herself, hadn't she, then?

She started up the stairs, and all the way to the top she thought not of the man she was to see the next day, but of Robb Hollis.

"There was something I ought to have said to him," she kept thinking all during the evening while she "did" her nails and washed out her best chiffon stockings for the party she was to give the next afternoon. "I ought to have told him that I loved him best—while I did care for him. I should have said something comforting to him."

Just as she was dropping off to sleep she was startled into wakefulness by a sudden feeling of great value. She wanted to get up and look for it. But what it was that she had lost she could not remember.

Then, just as she was falling asleep again she did remember. It was the ring. The pearl-and-garnet ring that she had given back to Robb, who had given it to her five months before in the kitchen of the little yellow house.

Robb sat back in his seat and glowered at its old-fashioned hood. "Well, you!" he addressed it after a few seconds. "You're just like I am, aren't you? You just don't quite make the grade, do you?" His voice was filled with bitterness as he leaned forward and released the emergency brake. The struggle-buggy slid back down the hill into the park.

Robb stepped on the gas and made a second dash at the little hill. This time the struggle-buggy went over the top, sped around the corner to Emmy's apartment building, and stopped neatly and nimbly before the door.

"I'll take you upstairs to your flat," Robb said. "I look like a sign-board painter, 'tis true, but I have a nice open face and they might let me walk through the lobby with you." "He tried to laugh, but the sound that came from his throat was the dismal of sobs."

"No, thanks, I'll just run along. Don't you bother about me," Emmy said, and got out of the little car, with its absurd mud guards that hung down like a hound's ears.

She stood in her own doorway and watched it bound away and vanish down the hill into the deep twilight

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—I read a piece in a paper the other day about a Hollywood entertainment and Louise Dresser getting the most applause from the movie people themselves. Well, she's a real heroine.

I interviewed her some years ago in a little city. She was doing small time vaudeville. She had dropped down from musical comedy if I recall. Anyway, she wasn't happy.

She gave a forced "happy" interview. It was her home town.

Then I lost sight of her till one day I saw her in a small movie part. Then, larger and larger parts, but she never has become a star. Yet, to me, in one picture alone (and that isn't all) she outshines the majority of the stars acting today.

That picture is "Mother Knows Best." It's from the book of Edna Ferber.

The picture is a William Fox presentation. I mention that merely because he goes in for the sentimental, mother love stuff. This is no exception. But Louise Dresser acts with such good taste that she grips the heart for the girl.

Now that in itself is a fine thing. Not many actresses would throw the sympathy to another character. And when that other character is as beautiful as Madge Bellamy, then it is doubly hard—if you see it from a professional point of view.

The picture is a William Fox presentation. I mention that merely because he goes in for the sentimental, mother love stuff. This is no exception. But Louise Dresser acts with such good taste that she grips the heart for the girl.

Now that in itself is a fine thing. Not many actresses would throw the sympathy to another character. And when that other character is as beautiful as Madge Bellamy, then it is doubly hard—if you see it from a professional point of view.

Louise Dresser, herself, is an attractive woman, almost spiritually inclined. No wonder the Hollywooders applaud her. She sets an example not only for Hollywood but for all of us.

I have not read Edna Ferber's book, but the picture becomes maudlin at the end. And, when the characters talk, no illusion remains. Even Louise Dresser should not talk.

There's a handsome fellow in this play—a breathtaking chap—Barry Norton. Thank goodness Madge married him.

I "caught" the picture after it had left its $2 stand on Broadway and had gone to the huge Roxy, where pictures are sandwiched in between $60,000 worth (I guess) of other entertainment.

I am beginning to suspect New York motion picture palaces may dispense with pictures and nobody miss them. I've heard folks say, "Gee, must I sit through the picture to hear the symphony concert?" But I always did think movie audiences had more sense than producers gave them credit for.

CLUB MEMBERS WILL ATTEND CALF SHOW

Members of the Boys' and Girls' 4-H Beef Calf Club met at the Greene County Farm Bureau office Tuesday evening with County Agent E. A. Drake and former Agent J. R. Kimber to discuss plans for the Cleveland Junior Livestock Show to be held Nov. 26-28.

The following members will attend the show, with their calves: Louise Hutchison, Robert Collins, Paul Rife, Robert Smith, Louis and Ralph Turner, Everett Bailey, Bruce Bickett, Alden Johnston, Raymond Edwards, Herbert McKay and Thomas Haines.

The calves will be shipped Saturday morning and the boys and girls will leave Monday, Nov. 26 at 11:45 a. m. via Pennsylvania railroad in a special car. They will arrive in Cleveland at 6:05 p. m. and that evening will be guests of the Cleveland Union Stockyards Co. at a dinner given at the Winton Hotel.

Anyone wishing to accompany this group and wanting reservations should notify the Farm Bureau office.

Sour Stomach Sign of Carelessness

POLITE society frowns on those whose stomachs "grumble." For careful people heed this warning that the contents of the stomach is sour and fermenting. These who don't, may some day develop gastritis—or even ulcers.

Nine times out of ten indigestion and allied stomach disorders are due to excess stomach acid, which impedes normal digestion and forms sour gases that cause intense pain. To restore good digestion you must eliminate this cause. A tablet of "Pape's Diapiesin" after eating or when pain is felt will instantly neutralize the acidity and banish all digestive trouble and pain.

So, do buy a 60-cent package of "Pape's Diapiesin" today. This not only means instant relief, but by soothing, healing and strengthening your weak and disordered stomach a little "Pape's Diapiesin" keeps your digestive system healthy and helps to prevent various disorders.

PUBLISHER VICTIM OF LENGTHY ILLNESS

ZANESVILLE, O., Nov. 16.—Joseph R. Downs, 56, publisher and managing editor of the Zanesville Signal, died here this afternoon, after a lengthy illness.

Downs, who was known to the newspaper fraternity as "Joe" was stricken several months ago and was confined to a hospital here four weeks.

He lost consciousness yesterday and physicians announced this morning that he could not survive the day.

He joined the Signal thirty-three years ago as a reporter and subsequently rose to the top, becoming in turn city editor, managing editor and publisher.

He was born in Homer, Licking County, the son of the Rev. and Mrs. C. B. Downs. Funeral arrangements have not been made.

NEW BOOKS AT LIBRARY

INTERESTING BOOKS OTHER THAN FICTION

Siegfried—America Comes Of Age

A penetrating survey by a Frenchman of contemporary American institutions, race relations, industrialism, politics, prohibition, foreign policy, culture, religion, and other aspects of our national life. Critics write in acclaiming this book as an invaluable contribution to the study of our civilization. Furthermore it is not only the work of a sane student of our country but is readable enough to be enjoyed by all who have left the A-B-C class.

Merz—Great American Band Wagon

A satire on such American idiosyncrasies as jazz, bathing, beauty contests, radio programs with a trade mark, and the blare of murder trials and prize fights.

Jean-Aubrey—Joseph Conrad 2 v. "A magnificent book and one which because of its peculiar value, will not be superseded as long as interest in Joseph Conrad remains."

The romantic narrative of Conrad's early years moves swiftly, is vividly conceived and possesses all of those qualities desirable in first-rate biography. The sirable part of the book is given over to his letters and here Mr. Jean-Aubrey has had the wisdom not to inject his personality. It is rich in documents upon which all students of Conrad must depend.

Allen—Israel

A painstaking and successful attempt to contribute news material about the life of Edgar Allen Poe. Not only that but Mr. Allen has contributed an interpretation of these facts. No student of the great poet will be wise to neglect this new book.

Overstreet—About Ourselves "A very helpful and interesting volume of psychology. Aside from the fascination of seeing ourselves objectively in these pages, there are suggested ways, at the close of each chapter, of modifying our behaviour to more adequately meet our needs. The book is well written with a simplicity that leaves power to concentrate on ourselves as we read."

Johnston—Ten and Out A history of the prize ring. Cooper—My Lady of the Indian Purdah

The idyll of Nataraj, daughter of a Rajah as told by her waiting-woman, Amina. Glimpses of Indian customs are woven in the story.

Cullum—Copper Sun A new collection of verse by a young Negro poet whose work has attracted wide attention.

"I remember her when she was beautiful"

"IT WASN'T so long ago either. Her complexion was the envy of every girl and woman." Her radiant manner was felt the instant she entered the room. . . . But now you'd hardly know she was the same person. Her animation is gone—her clear skin is sallow. She's always tired—often irritable. . . .

Here's what has been said about countless women all over the country. Yet, all this could have been prevented. The cause, often constipation, is so easily removed by Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Happily, thousands of women have made this discovery. By regular eating of ALL-BRAN they have regained all that they lost in beauty and health.

But you need ALL-BRAN—not "part-bran"

It is the "bulk" in bran that relieves constipation. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN has a large amount of bulk. This bulk absorbs moisture and carries it throughout the digestive system. In a part-bran product there is seldom enough bulk to do this work. That is why doctors recommend ALL-BRAN. Because it is 100% bran—and brings 100% results.

How different from dangerous pills

How much better than habit-forming drugs and laxatives! Which become useless unless the dose is constantly increased—and sometimes injure the system. How much pleasanter than sickening medicines! Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is a delicious cereal. Serve it with milk or cream—and add fruits or honey if desired. Use it in cooking too. Mix it with other cereals—for health! Just eat two table-spoonfuls in some form daily—in chronic cases, with every meal.

Keep ALL-BRAN always on hand—a package of health. But be sure it is genuine Kellogg's—the original ALL-BRAN. Don't risk part-bran substitutes. At best, they can be but partially effective. ALL-BRAN is sold by all grocers. Served at all hotels and restaurants. On dining-cars. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

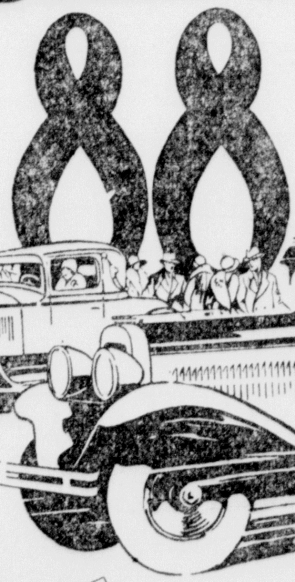

Guaranteed! Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is sold with this definite guarantee: Eat it according to directions. If it does not relieve constipation safely, we will refund the purchase price.
